Via six masterpieces, the film reveals the beauty of the spirit of Versailles of the 17th and 18th centuries. A unique homage to the people that crafted it, the furniture reveals the personal tastes of its commissioners, and portrays something that has ceased to exist!

These unique items of furniture that once belonged to Louis 14th, Louis 15th, Marie-Antoinette and Louis 16th have fascinating stories to tell: the tortoise-shell chest-of-drawers with inlays of brass; an astronomical clock - a veritable miracle of science; the most emblematic example of French furniture art in the world - the King's Desk; and the exquisite items made for Marie-Antoinette - the queen's jewellery case and the wheat-sheaf furniture.

From the Great Plains of the American West to the Rocky Mountains, from the Apache Reservation to the suburbs of Deadwood, bringing up the rear in convoys of pioneers or riding with desperados, Calamity Jane, Legend of the West recounts the true story of the American West and of one of the most unique of all its women, the fascinating Calamity Jane.

In addition to the myth, the film recounts the moving and raw reality of Martha Canary, alias Calamity Jane, whose life spanned the second half of the 19th century. She lived during the era of the last convoys to the Pacific, took part in the Indian Wars, contributed to the building of new towns, lived through epidemics, loneliness and the ravages of alcohol, witnessed the birth of journalism, contributed to writing the story of the Far West, and led the life of an independent woman.

At the turn of the 20th century, they crossed the Atlantic Ocean leaving a miserable, persecuted or uncertain existence in Europe for New York's wide avenues, Brooklyn's profitable gambling dens or Hollywood's Highlights.

Like 12 millions of other emigrants, they landed on Ellis Island, first outpost of the American federal immigration station in the Upper New York Bay, ultimate gateway to the United-States of America. In those decisive hours, when their fates do not belong to them and are in someone else's hands, where federal immigration inspectors decide who is approved and who is sent home, the Melting Pot was born, built up of the teeming masses arriving from the Old Continent.

Rewriting the story of some exemplary destinies for a few, among the anonymous and long-forgotten voices of the other immigrants, we will relate the greatest european tragedies of the first half of the 20th century to an ambivalent America, which welcomes through successive waves, an immigration who will recreate and embody the << American Dream >>.

In the early 30s, as it was being built, the metro construction workers, headed up by a brigade of writers, were summoned to write "The Story of the Moscow Metro".

Based on these partly unpublished writings and in the spirit of this "literary utopia", subsequently wiped out in the 1937-38 purges, our film recounts the construction of the first lines of the world's most beautiful metro.

While the war raged on, Henry Kissinger, national security advisor to President Nixon, and Lê Duc Tho, member of the Vietnamese Politburo, held secret meetings in France. Exclusive interviews and undisclosed recording reveal what actually happened between these two men who remained worlds apart.

27 January 1973. After five years of negotiations in Paris, the Americans and the Vietnamese made peace, in what had been a difficult process.

3 months earlier, in September 1972, a preliminary agreement had been secretly signed in France between Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho. In Saigon, the ally of the Americans, Nguyen Van Thieu, refused to sign it. Under orders from President Nixon, Kissinger was to resume his secret negotiations in October 1972 with his North Vietnamese counterpart, offering him amendments he could not accept. In mid-December, negotiations were suspended and Le Duc Tho returned to Hanoi. Two hours later, North Vietnam and its capital Hanoi suffered a spate of bombings. The air strikes, including bombings from around a hundred B-52s, lasted twelve days. Nixon had warned: "We must punish the enemy in ways that he will really hurt".

How to understand this final act of "cruelty", this massive and destructive air offensive, when peace was signed just three weeks later?

Supported by previously unaired archives, this film plunges us into the heart of the secret negotiations, finally shedding light on the obscure logic of US action, and reveals the extent of the tragedy: even when peace had become the main objective of all players, each player had to show their determination to continue the war.

Why does 3 quarters of European electronic waste escape recycling and end up illegally in landfill?

In the suburbs of Accra, the capital of Ghana, children play at dismantling scrapped electronic equipment, surrounded by foul smelling and toxic fumes, in a sadly-famous, uncontrolled rubbish dump. The film takes this site as its point of departure, and is driven forward by Ghanaian journalist Mike Anane, who is an expert on the environment. He wants to know why his country has become the trash can of the developed countries.

This lucid and efficient investigation by Cosima Danneritzer (The Light Bulb Conspiracy) into several European countries, Asia and the U.S., reveals the apparatus of large-scale trafficking, as well as a complex chain of responsibility and collusion.

Now that the crisis (economic, financial and ecological) has taken a firm hold over Europe and the rest of the world, the "return to growth" is systematically put forward by political leaders on both right and left, as the key process that will help us emerge from the tunnel.

For the public, invoking a return to growth always raises the same questions: what exactly is growth? How did this economic concept progressively make its mark, to the point of becoming an intangible dogma? How can we continue to promote unlimited growth today, knowing that our planet's resources are limited and are even facing exhaustion? Are there any theoretical and practical alternatives to growth? What can we do on a local level to change the paradigm?

In the film, these concrete experiences alternate between the words of experts, echoing each other, and together outlining new ways to set into motion the vital transition, For each field embodying this transition, the film presents an initiative in the North and in the South to highlight the universality of the movement.

KILLER FINANCE

Why must public money be given to private banks facing bankruptcy? A remarkable investigation into the madness of a system.

Killer Finance is a highly structured narrative alternating the words of specialists and instructive animated scenes with carefully selected archive images. It is composed of two separate chapters - on the one hand, a veritable lesson in political and economic history retracing the various stages that have led to the financialization of the world economy since the 1929 crisis - and on the other a breakdown of the stock-exchange logic of the recent decade that has led to the current crisis. What have we taken from it? What lessons have we learned from it since 2008?

Apple, the brand that symbolises counter-culture, has become a giant that dictates cultural norms and trends. At the root of their success story lies the genius marketing ploy of making mainstream power look tacky by declaring themselves counter to it, thereby conquering consumers with their cool.

The death of Steve Jobs, on October 5th, provided a dramatic illustration of the paradox of Apple, which is at the heart of this film. It is the first time in history that an entrepreneur has been applauded and mourned as a benefactor of mankind, and their commercial success lauded as a work of genius.

This fascinating ability to combine a "rebel-brand" image with huge commercial profits will be the object of this documentary investigation, which examines both the universe of Mac and modern man and his ambiguities.

Tracing the history of the brand, from the beginnings of the small computer company to today's multinational, the film shows how Apple has taken a giant bite out of the market, thanks to its aesthetic choices, emotional marketing and indisputable technological ingenuity.

A new generation - the geek generation - has taken over. It is now fashionable to be a geek and for everyone to claim to be one. In saga form, this documentary follows the irresistible rise of a generation and the cultural tsunami it has spearheaded.

First appearing in the 70s, geeks had a shared passion for computers, science fiction and comic books, and developed their own culture opposed to the norm. Right from the start, geek culture established its own key dates, codes, special places and cult figures. The Lord of the Rings, Star Wars, Steve Jobs, Pac-Man and Mario Bros were all vital references.

Things had changed by the 2000s. Now the first-generation geeks were thirty or forty and had become a vital creative and economic power. Their values reflected those promoted by modern society, and popular imagination - especially in films - turned the geek into a central character.

So the geek explosion is important to everyone. It is the symptom and representation of a new rapport with technology, a new way of communicating. It reflects a swing from traditional culture to pure entertainment culture.

This documentary reveals how a gesture of emancipation has become an urban ritual and sums up the US today. A place with a high concentration of seats of power. A cradle of black music, but one that took a long time to recognise Hip Hop, the style that popularised the "fist bump".

Originally, shaking hands was a mark of trust. People held out an open hand to show they were not holding a weapon. Today, everybody is doing the "fist bump". How and why did a banal gesture created by 17th century black slaves - which subsequently became a symbol of black ghettos, rap and US sport - end up becoming part of Barack Obama's inauguration ceremony at the White House?

How do enormous quantities of food reach there every day and where does it come from? Who decides the prices and puts together thousands of different vendors in huge but concentrated areas? HORS D'OEUVRE

A documentary series about art and Gastronomy. Beginning with a famous masterpiece, historians, art historians and historians of food take us on a journey through food history and art. Acting as detectives, they give us keys in order to understand the painting and the painter, the historical context and how people ate at that time While the specialists deal with those topics, a three-stars chef explains what the masterpiece inspires in him and explains what he (or she) is going to cook as a result.

The chef is the guide of the show. He or she may interact with the specialists (accompanying them to a museum and asking the curator to give him some information about the painting for instance).

At the end, everyone who took part in the program meets with the chef at his restaurant (or in a place chosen by the chef) for a final discussion.

What is haute couture today ? This film updates the definition of this luxury craft by examining trends among young designers who have reached, or hope to reach, the precious haute couture label.

The documentary highlights 2 young designers: Delphine Manivet and Iris van Herpen, who freely blend tradition and modernity in their creations, thus breaking the codes of haute couture.

One of them launched her own brand of wedding dresses in 2005, and is representative of the young designers who have reinvented the genre by playing down the wedding dress with modern designs that are closer to ready-to-wear; while the other has been revisiting haute couture since 2007, with her avant-gardist and conceptual designs, and juggling with innovative materials such as Plexiglas and Rhodoid.

An air of mystery reigned at the end of the Balmain fashion show on September 28, 2011: nobody knew who was about to take a bow. No one in the room knew the new house designer. His name is Olivier Rousteing.

Ever since Yves Saint Laurent's mythical rise to the top of the Dior house at the age of 21, the world of fashion has delighted in young prodigies whose fine instincts and outstanding personalities promise to change the course of things. Olivier Rousteing belongs to this line of descent.

Paris has a new hero. But it's not an easy legacy to bear, especially in the mythical French house created in 1945 by Pierre Balmain. Is Olivier Rousteing disconnected from reality? How does he manage the stress before a fashion show? How does he build team spirit? How does he dream up and subsequently perfect his talents as a tailor?

In this twelve-part documentary series, Prigent chronicles the final 36 hours prior to crucial seasonal runway shows featuring creations by some of the fashion world's leading designers.

In SIGNE CHANEL (2005) and MARC JACOBS & LOUIS VUITTON (2007), documentarian Loic Prigent unveiled rare and refreshing glimpses behind the doors of some of the world's leading fashion houses.

THE DAY BEFORE captures 8 different fashion houses 36 hours before a show. The backstage, the ateliers, the designer in studio, the fittings, the stress and the dramas occurring in this specific period of time. Each episode is totally different but tells the same story: how to create in a state of emergency? This is a never seen before full access story.

Created by Mademoiselle Agnès and Loïc Prigent, hosted by Mademoiselle Agnès, the series is shot during the New York, Milan and Paris fashion weeks.

This is a hilarious, irreverent and insightful report about the whole fashion world: the trends, the business and of course, the people.

For now almost 10 years, LALALA has been producing the bi-annual TV show about fashion, Dressed for Summer and Dressed for Winter .

Meet Mademoiselle Agnès, French fashion reporter. She is in the heart of the action, running on 5-inches heels. Front row and backstage, she collects all the secrets, confidences and gossips for a funny insight of the fashion world.

New York Times : "Mademoiselle Agnès is the rare personality who can approach a runway show as if nothing, or no one, in fashion is sacred, which is why it was not surprising to find her lurking outside the ateliers of Dior and Yves Saint Laurent last week to stick a camera in the face of Anna Wintour."

Top models, actresses and businesswomen - two outstanding icons revealed. The 1990s produced a new kind of top model. They were beautiful girls but they were also much more than that.

With their strong characters, the "supermodels" turned the codes of fashion upside down, and extended the boundaries of pop culture. Among them, Eva Herzigova and Milla Jovovich immediately stood out. Both grew up far from the glamour of Hollywood, and made their mark without conforming to the stereotypes imposed by the Western dream machine. Leading photographer Peter Linbergh was one of the first to notice the two top models. This film sheds light on the lesser-known facets of two outstanding paths.

Loïc Prigent returns to an exciting, fascinating, crazy and transformative decade that threw everything into question with its fashions that were alternately poverty-inspired, sensational, intellectual and pared-down, before making a victorious and sexy comeback!

This documentary combines spot-on analysis with socio-cultural dissection and a fun trip down memory lane. The inspirational fashions of the 1990s are currently being recuperated, revisited, revamped and revered by catwalk collections in Paris, Milan and New York. The film's 6 major themes - grunge, bad taste, bling, streetwear, sex and minimalism are made up of lively images blending archive footage and present-day interviews.

This documentary plunges viewers into the day-to-day lives of influential female bloggers and models, and decodes the phenomenon of 2.0 fashion, via interviews with web and fashion experts.

Instagram, Pinterest, Facebook, Tumblr, Vine, Twitter ... there is no end to the number of social networks on which the "It-Girls" can publish a profusion of photos and comments about their day-to-day lives. These practices have become truly democratized, and represent an "open-book personal diary", in which every publication posted expresses an uninhibited narcissism. How does one become an Instagram or Tumblr star?

What if we watched Jean Paul Gaultier at work giving the definitive master class on what constitutes the essence of his work?

Jean Paul Gaultier's work is making clothes, not putting on fashion shows, producing perfume, talking to the media or presenting programs on MTV. But making clothes. He sketches them, of course, but more importantly, he creates them by draping them, constructing them around the body of the fitting model.

12 of Jean Paul Gaultier's most iconic creations are re-created directly onto a fitting model, in front of the camera, in understated, white surroundings. 10 women's outfits and 2 men's outfits.

In Haute Couture, the "toile" is the first stage, carried out using untreated, beige linen, which enables appraisal of the style. Like a first draft, the moment during which everything can still be changed, before the creation takes on its final shape. Jean Paul Gaultier at work can be viewed as a sequence shot, in which the garments materialize before our eyes, revealing how his thought process develops between ideas and material. Gaultier's oeuvre, recounted by himself, in the first person - like a lasting legacy of creativity.

Kate Moss, the top model who is only 1.69 meters tall, still remains, at the age of 40, the model that everyone wants to employ and that everybody knows. But who really is Kate Moss?

She is a veritable icon, a muse of the greatest designers, a shrewd businesswoman (her 2012 revenues are estimated at 9.2 million dollars) and a designer for Longchamp, Topshop and Fred. She has even been the subject of an exhibition at the Museum of Decorative Arts in Paris and of an auction at Christie's in London, featuring artwork images of her.

Kate Moss has had the longest and most successful modelling career, but also the most turbulent, and yet she still remains the top top-model.

Autism remains a mystery. However, the fact that there is no medical treatment is an absolute certainty. There is no solution for autism. People with autism will live with this disorder all their life and societies are all facing the same question: how to take care of them?

France lags behind on this subject. Comparing the experiences of other countries, Italy, Sweden, Germany, and Quebec, we will clarify the French situation and demonstrate that practices exist and allow to improve significantly the autistic's life. Every time it comes to real societal choices that reveal our various ways to approach difference. But there are in any case, no simple answers to this complex problem.

At a time when France is envisaging prison reform, other European countries have already been experimenting for quite some time with a different mode of incarceration, so as to favor rehabilitation.

Overpopulated prisons, round-the-clock surveillance, the perspective of repeat offences: inmates nearing the end of their sentences, particularly those who have committed minor offences, often lack the resources to prepare for rehabilitation into the free world.

"In the depths of the collective subconscious lies the notion that inmates must pay by suffering", remarks Robert Badinter. And yet in Finland, Germany and Switzerland, nearly a quarter of inmates end their sentences in an open environment. A system based on trust and on the inmates' work, enabling them to start afresh, sometimes far from their prisons. For a third of the running costs of classic imprisonment, these solutions are proving efficient, both socially and economically.

The investigation turns to professionals of the prison world and above all, to the inmates. In addition to being a potential and judicious approach, open prisons could become a major issue for modern democracies.

RETRO REVOLUTION (THE)

Since the late 2000s and the start of the "Mad Men" series, a retro wave has swept over Western pop culture.

From the cinema (an Oscar for "The Artist", and "Gatsby" with Leonardo Di Caprio presented at Cannes), to television ("The Hours", "Peaky Blinders" and "Fleming"), via fashion with Dita Von Teese's version of the fifties' figure, and the Swing Kids' look of the 1930s - never before has our present been so imbued with the past. The culture of creation may be taking a look in the rear-view mirror, but young urbanites have taken things a step further by turning retro culture into a veritable way of day-to-day life.

In Paris, New York, Berlin and London, this "neo-retro" community adopts not only a quaint appearance, but also the values and codes of the era (the 1920s to the 1960s). Some denounce the stagnation of pop culture over the last couple of decades and see this retro culture as a sign of a certain cultural regression, but many others believe vintage culture enables us to better live in the present.

The film recounts this "retro-mania" and what it says about our contemporary society.

SEX & MUSIC

How, since the 1950s, have music and sex influenced each other? Between the intimate and the universal, this 4-episode documentary series recounts evolving mores, through song.

In the 1950s, 3% of songs in the charts were about sex. In the 1970s, that figure had risen to 40%. And in 2009, sex featured in 92% of hits! Sex and music: their intertwined paths recount evolving mores, over the decades, but also our transgressions, our freedoms and our desires. Is it because songs have modelled our thoughts that our sexual behaviours have changed? Or is it our sexual behaviours that have influenced the world of music? Is Madonna forging a new image of women's sexuality, or is her music inspired by women's emancipation of preceding decades? Do heavy metal groups wear leather and studs because of SM influence, or has SM become sufficiently commonplace as to be put on display?

In 4 chapters, this series shows the paths our identities and sexual leanings have taken, and how, via songs, we have gone from inhibition to a pronounced desire for pleasure.

The history of homosexuality in pop culture is awash with secrets, unexpected developments, drama and major acts of courage, which form part of History in general.

It is no longer anything unusual to see homosexual characters in films or series. All the arts explore the theme, and numerous celebrities do not hide the fact that they are lesbian or gay. Yet not so long ago, it was a very complex matter to speak about homosexuality in popular culture, and those who did so had to find ingenious ways to approach the subject, and thus nudge mentalities forward to make homosexuals more accepted by the general public - and by themselves.

The film takes us to Hamburg, Berlin, Paris, Istanbul, London, Toulouse, Lyon and other cities, and recounts how towns and cities are being constructed and transformed, and what space is being left in them for citizens.

Public spaces, the spaces we live our collective lives in, are becoming privatised and marginalised, and run the risk of disappearing altogether. This investigation examines the excesses of the new tools of urbanism, and explores the citizen, political and artistic reactions that are endeavouring to oppose them, in France and in Europe.

In the mythical Eastern Ethiopian city of Harar, man and hyenas live in peace. Here, on the outskirts of the city, Youssouf Mume Saleh, or the "Hyena-man" as he is known, feeds a clan of spotted hyenas every evening. Elsewhere in the Horn of Africa, these animals can terrorize populations, but as Youssouf says himself, the hyenas are part of his family. He has given a name to each one of them.

Youssouf is one of the last guardians of a tradition that is over one hundred years old. Long ago, Harar signed a non-aggression pact with the hyenas, and that pact still exists today. The wild hyenas roam the streets of the city freely, and locals are not worried. They need these natural "rubbish collectors". In addition, the hyenas of Hara protect the population from attack by foreign hyenas.

At a time when all over the world conflicts between man and wild animals are increasing, here exists a unique relationship of cohabitation between man and a major carnivore. This film recounts the story of this exceptional and fascinating man-animal relationship.

No other part of the world boasts as many castles and palaces as Europe. A breath-taking aerial view leads us through the Loire Valley in France, to southern Germany, the southeast of England, the Piedmont in Italy and along Portugal's coast.

Kings and Princes built their palaces and summer residences in the most beautiful and strategically located spots.

We will introduce individuals who walk the tightrope between tradition and modern-day reality by living and working in castles, châteaux and palaces or in their immediate vicinity. They will open doors that are normally closed to the outside world and reveal captivating stories.

A generous and poetic road movie, off the beaten track. On his old orange Mobylette, François Skyvington invites us on a unique trip around France and Germany. Taking side roads and byroads, he lets us in on his fun and informative one-of-a-kind encounters.

Director and author (of "My Beautiful Mobylette", published by Ouest France), François Skyvington has, in the past, been a globetrotter, a courier, a fairground worker, an antique-dealer and a barman. An adventurer in search of new encounters and stories, he travels through France and Germany on his old orange moped from Arles to Munich, via Ushant and Berlin.

For the first time in over a century, the sometimes far-fetched Yeti legends and personal accounts have become the subject of state-of-the-art scientific studies. Several teams throughout the world, in Denmark, England, the US and Russia are carrying out a merciless competition to be the first to publish the revolutionary results - proof that another hominid, with very ancient roots, shares our existence

Does the Yeti really exist? Our film sets out to meet the teams involved in this strange race across the world, and features laboratories, hair analysis, footprints and DNA as well as the search for samples in Indonesia and in Canadian nature reserves. A fascinating and thorough film, featuring, amongst others, French Collège de France paleoanthropologist Pascal Picq.

In February 2013 a film crew led by documentary filmmaker David Sington will leave Montevideo in Uruguay for a voyage across the South Atlantic into the stormiest waters on Earth.

Their destination will be a rendezvous with the Saga Sea, a high-technology trawler operating in the Antarctic Ocean. It will be a voyage to the latest and possibly last frontier between industrial civilization and the natural world, in search of a mysterious sea creature which for decades has held the promise of transforming human nutrition: krill. Could the exploitation of krill improve diet across the globe, or will it simply lead to the collapse of one of the most important ecosystems on the planet?

Does cultured meat - which numerous scientists in various countries are working on - open up real perspectives for feeding a rising population and for fighting pollution (18% of greenhouse gasses allegedly come from livestock rearing)? Or does it represent a false hope?

Will the environmental arguments put forward in its favour be enough to convince consumers to eat cultured meat? Is the current commercial success of the first meat-substitute products available on the market heralding a change in what we eat? Would it not be preferable to turn towards insects, given that they are an already established source of protein and, what's more, are natural?

Can the phenomenon of today's allergy explosion be rationally explained? This documentary endeavours to understand the phenomenon, by highlighting the true environmental causes and the protection strategies we have at our disposal.

In the course of her investigation, the director unpicks the classical theory that attributes allergies to a natural flaw in our immune system, making it erroneously target inoffensive elements necessary for life, such as pollen, for example, and sheds light on industry's role in the spread of this modern scourge. Highlighting the lack of testing on the effects of pesticides and antibiotics before putting them on the market, challenging the notion of "background doses"... Patrizia Marani blows the lid off the dubious practices of the pharmaceutical laboratories and agri-food corporations, showing how, day by day, their chemicals are weakening our immune systems.

Should cancer really be understood and treated as a "disease of the genes" or could another avenue - which was once abandoned but has now been taken up again - enable us to understand and treat it?

Researchers and doctors in various countries think so, and want to revolutionise treatment. For them, cancer is a disorder of cellular metabolism, which could be treated with a few simple molecules. This film invites us to take stock of their research.

For a few years now, scientists have known about the existence of another brain within our bodies - billions of connected neurons, molecules (neurotransmitters) that transmit orders and induce independent reactions. This second brain, or "brain down below" is none other than our stomach.

It can function totally independently and carries out far more than just digestion. It reigns over a spectacular colony of one hundred thousand billion bacteria (our gut flora) whose activity is thought to have an impact on our personalities and decisions, and our shyness or temerity. Even more astonishing: certain diseases of the brain, like Parkinson's disease, for example, could stem from the degeneration of our intestinal neurons. And we could even treat our stomach pains with hypnosis - curing our stomachs by "talking to them". All these major discoveries have revolutionised our approach to an organ that was previously considered to be dull and passive. The stomach's intelligence is a new avenue of research that is fascinating research teams the world over. This film takes a look at it.

Is Baclofen, which has been used as a muscle relaxant for years, the miracle-molecule cure for alcoholism some think it is?

This documentary follows a clinical trail aimed at testing its efficacy. It also examines the scientific and ethical issues regarding addiction treatment, and the limits of medicine.

In recent years, the medical approach to alcoholism has undergone major change with the hype surrounding a "miracle" molecule that can allegedly quite simply cure those who are dependent on alcohol: Baclofen.

Use of the drug is causing debate in the medical world -is it really efficacious? Does Baclofen provide real hope for the 140 million people worldwide who are dependent on alcohol? Can we "cure" alcoholism as we can cure organic disease?

Dark matter, which is unknown and undetectable in our physical models, would appear to populate the cosmos on a massive scale. For the first time, a film portrays the wild scientific quest that dark matter gives rise to. A real thriller.

In our physical models, the weight of all observable matter (stars, galaxies, etc.) accounts for just 4% of the universe, whereas an invisible, unknown matter that no tool has ever been able to detect appears to populate the universe on a massive scale.

Today, astrophysicists and cosmologists - researchers in the fields of the infinitely large and the infinitely small - are joining forces to solve a major mystery: what is this famous "dark matter" made up of?

A breath-taking thriller that leads us to the dawn of a scientific and metaphysical revolution, akin to Copernic's or Galileo's. It could totally change the way we perceive our world.

How do our brains carry out the process of reading? A professor emeritus guides us through this fascinating exploration of a high-precision neural mechanism.

The film structures itself around a central question we ask as an enigma: how to reconcile the cultural singularity that is reading, developed recently by our single species, with the slow pace of genetic evolution, and therefore with the fixity of brain biology?

Stanislas Dehaene proposed an astonishing scientific hypothesis: neuronal recycling. In other words, our cultural inventions, such as reading, resulting in the diversion of pre-existing brain function.

Can a river be restored, just like work of art or a castle? This film recounts the fascinating ecological adventure that is gaining ground, worldwide, of giving back a little space to landscaped rivers, and the freedom they so desperately require.

In December 2003, the rapid rise in the level of the Rhône turned to tragedy. The river ruptured its embankments, claiming lives and displacing thousands, amid widespread shock. It had been thought the river was under control, but it was observed that the frantic and anarchic planning of the river - in order to tame it and subjugate it to our economic and energy needs - was partly responsible for the catastrophe.

Too many embankments, too many dams, too many roads and railways, too much concrete ... squeezing the Rhône, crowding it out and hemming it in. With its landscapes spoilt and its biodiversity impoverished, it is now even becoming a danger for humans. And so the decision has been made to "restore" it.

Via the epic of continental drift, we travel to all 4 corners of the planet, to meet scientists who are carrying out state-of-the-art research on the most emblematic landscapes of each geological event.

With these scientists, and thanks to their work, we discover the sites in a new light - landscapes that we often see but rarely look at closely. The journey also establishes the key reference points of life alongside the geologic time scale - the appearance of life, of plants, of terrestrial life, dinosaurs and Man punctuate the geologic time scale.

Pierre Bonnard is one of the great masters of 20th century painting. A painter of the intimate, driven by an obsession with landscapes and domestic scenes, his timeless oeuvre earned him great criticism in his time.

How did Bonnard, a private, anxious man, who lived an ordinary day-to-day existence, become the incontestable painter of intimacy, capable of transforming reality into a unique and incandescent world?

Through his paintings, his personal notebooks, his correspondence with Matisse and Vuillard, the photographs he was so fond of, and the places he lived, which he painted and exalted time and time again, the film plunges viewers into the world of this master of colour.

Diego Velázquez, the artist ceaselessly in search of the human truth through the treatment of the light and the space and in the way he roams around things, is a documentary maker before his time. His work full of boldness marks an essential stage in the history of paint.

From the paints of Velázquez and especially what gets free of it, the movie goes off to explore the peculiarity of the "painter of the painters" and of the artistic and esthetic revolution which Diego Velázquez caused. Since the "Venus with a Mirror" up to the mirror of Ménines, the movie escapes any didacticism and attempts to recreate the exceptional emotional link between the work of Velázquez and the look of the public, between the eye of the painter and the one of the spectator. Between his life and our lives.

As part of a Louvre Museum initiative, the worlds' leading experts on Rembrandt, Leonardo da Vinci, Watteau, Raphael and Poussin joined forces to rediscover and study the masters' works that were de-hung and de-framed for the occasion.

The masterpieces at the Louvre are real survivors!

Throughout the centuries, they have managed to escape pillaging, fire, woodworm, pigment degradation, changing tastes, overpaints, heavy-handed restorations, mutilation by saw, attacks, ageing and oblivion. Some works have lived a clandestine life, under false identity, others, believed to be lost, have suddenly reappeared centuries later.

An exceptional event, even for experts. In these collective investigations, each participant tries to shed light on the enigmas surrounding the works. A unique encounter between man and works of art.

Katsushika Hokusai was probably the most famous and most outstanding Japanese painter and printmaker of his generation, and was the artist whose fame was the quickest to cross the seas (his name has been popular in Europe for a long time).

A multi-faceted and all-round artist, his work is labyrinthine, probably comprising some 30,000 prints, not counting his oil paintings and the books he illustrated. The painter's life was rich, his work was prolific, and both were imbued with a multitude of signs most of which are unknown to us. Let's embark upon a journey and pay a "visit to Hokusai", in the company of his enlightened admirers - Japanese connoisseurs, who are familiar with all these signs.

This film provides the opportunity to follow an outstanding project - the restoration of one of the Louvre Museum's greatest icons.

Victory of Samothrace. The masterpiece of Greek sculpture attracts millions of visitors every year, yet is little known to the general public. Archaeologists and art historians have been carrying out research on it for many years in order to clear up some of its remaining mysteries.

Based on the major stages of its restoration, this film recounts the history of a two-thousand-year-old sculpture that today has lost its head and arms, and that travelled to Paris from a small Greek island nearly 150 years ago, in "kit form". The monument - one of the most spectacular and accomplished expressions of Greek sculpture of the Hellenistic period - has dominated the Louvre Museum's Daru staircase since 1883.

The Mysteries of the Tarot of Marseille is a documentary about the most enigmatic game of cards of all time. The Tarot of Marseille is known today as the fortune teller's favourite game of cards. Owing to the strange figures that adorn them, for centuries these cards have exerted a strong power of fascination. What do they mean? Who created them and for what purpose?

In the caves of the Hungarian castle of Esztergom, a fresco attributed to Botticelli gives us the starting point to a fantastic investigation through the art and philosophy of the Renaissance, leading to a savant in the circle of Lorenzo de' Medici. This man, Marsilio Ficino, was a philosopher, a priest, an astrologer as well as a magician. As argued in the film, he was also the mastermind behind the philosophical enigmas that are the images on the Tarot of Marseille. This set of images, as we shall see, rather than an ordinary game of cards, reveals itself as a pedagogical tool designed to transmit, while playing, the deepest secrets of Platonic philosophy.

Beneath the surface of the painting, details awaken, to recount the spirit of the times and the vagaries of History, such as wars, revolutions, economic transformation, scientific discovery, beliefs and schools of thought.

DESIGN

Placing the art of design in its sociological and technological context, the DESIGN collection tells the story of the 20th century through the industrial objects that have made their mark on it. The objects reflect their time, while at the same time anticipating the future.

Just like a piece of art, an industrial object is a mirror of its era, though in a more direct and explicit manner than a painting or a sculpture. The industrial object obeys two fundamental criteria: It needs to be functional, perform its task in daily life - and after all must be sold. Therefore, it has to be technically innovative and esthetically pleasant.

The series, rather than explaining last century's objects, uses them to zoom on different periods. Which invites the audience not so much on a tour through museums, but on a journey in time. Archive images illustrate the political, social and cultural situation of a defined chapter from our past, via film extracts, cultural presentations, popular music etc. The history of the object itself, its conception, creators, fabrication and a contemporary frame story join in to build a bridge between the past and the present.

Every snapshot is an enigma, the capture of an instant that remains frozen in time. But what happened before? and after? Or just outside of frame? The sublime series now retraces the adventure of this art form, from its beginnings to the present, revealing the hidden stories and trade secrets concealed in a series of photographs.

Every photograph is an enigma. A moment locked into a rectangle. We will never know what happened just before it was taken, or just next to it.

What had to be moved, adjusted, waited for or provoked for all the elements to suddenly come together in the frame and produce an image that once seen, is never forgotten?

Compared to painting, the rules of the photography game are incredibly simple, requiring nothing more than a few pieces in a minimalist game of chess - a subject, a frame, light, a lens, a shutter, and a base. The importance of these pieces varies according to their position, and they are moved around permanently in relation to each other.

The collection invites viewers to discover from the inside "how it's done", and imagine themselves as actors in the complex game that is played out between photography and the real.

Albert Camus is today's most widely read 20th century French writer. For the celebration in 2013 of the centenary of his birth, this documentary goes in search of his impassioned readers.

Camus' admirers form a vast "community" that extends far beyond borders. A cheerful and improbable community made up of people, unknowingly, from different walks of life, including singers (The Cure, Patti Smith...), a Breton priest, an American abolitionist, a Chicago attorney, a Japanese calligrapher and a dancer from Yaoundé.

Sartre and Camus, the two most world-famous, 20th century, French writers, form a legendary and inseparable couple. The two extraordinary thinkers propelled the figure of the politically engaged writer into the limelight. Between 1943 and 1951, Sartre and Camus were friends. In 1952, they publically tore each other apart, with violence, panache and in bad faith, largely on account of the cold war.

There were many reasons for their rupture, including literary, philosophical, political and personal ones, as well as divergent deep beliefs, jealousy and resentment. There constitute all the ingredients of an intellectual and fictional drama. The relationship the two iconoclastic thinkers shared was simple yet tormented, and mundane yet out-of-the-ordinary.

HD

Their conflict marked generations of intellectuals, who had to choose whether they sided with Sartre or Camus. This film features a multitude of personal accounts, and a previously unaired recording of Sartre talking about Camus. It is centred round many previously unseen archive images, and contains original graphics.

Tucked behind the Parisian Grands Boulevards is a place that imbues today's budding talents with the spirit of the major 19th century composers and writers.

The Opéra comique is a theatre. It is also a genre - a blend of dialogue and song - and a repertoire, but, above all, it is the cradle of a lively performing art. The last resident troupe at the Opéra comique dated back to 1971 until recently, but this year, the institution has gone back to its roots and created an academy with 10 young opera singers, picked for their talent, their diversity and the way they complement each other. The first set of singers is already busy transforming the Opéra comique's history, repertoire and culture into song.

Step inside the most prestigious performing arts school where Miles Davis, Pina Bausch and Kevin Spacey studied.

A captivating discovery, to the rhythm of the school calendar, of the path followed by several students and the philosophy of an institution, where social and community involvement is as much part of the curriculum as the artistic teaching.

One of a kind, the Juilliard School is a school of excellence, the most selective in the United States. The long list of its graduates, which includes Pina Bausch, Kevin Spacey and Miles Davis, is both prestigious and eclectic, and other art schools around the globe are pale with envy.

The 300-year old Paris Opera Ballet School is today a mythical place with an international reputation. In September 2011, it was home to 130 pupils, aged from 8 to 18, all driven by the same desire - to dance one day at the Paris Opera.

Our camera was allowed to accompany them for a whole school year.

The characters are: the younger students, who are amazingly determined for their age; the older students, who, at the age of 16, are already professional dancers; their teachers, who are often principal dancers; and all those who watch over this very singular world.

This 6-part chronicle of life at the school reveals the extraordinary mechanics of precision that lead the students to the threshold of the Corps de Ballet.

Brigitte Bardot, an emblem of female emancipation and sexual liberation, went from the status of innocent girl to that of femme fatale under the gaze of filmmakers and the media.

Blending previously unseen family archives with passages from Bardot's autobiography, and the photographs that shaped her image with the films in which she starred, this documentary provides a subjective and sensitive rereading of the Bardot myth.

For the first time, we see a darker side of Brigitte Bardot, alluded to in her own writings and in the movies that drained her. What lay behind her sunny, blond, natural, dream-girl image?

Everything has been said, shown and recounted regarding the legend of Charlie Chaplin. Everything... or nearly everything!

How did a street child, born in one of the most underprivileged districts of London, become the most famous man in the world in the space of a few years?

How did cinema, which was only just reaching adulthood, free itself from Music Hall and Vaudeville to suddenly burst into modernity in such a short time, evolving from the status of fairground attraction to an industry generating fortunes and creating almost instant celebrities?

Our film will relive the history of the success of Chaplin, going beyond the era and fashions, and examine the birth of an icon, on its centenary, whose outline alone sums up what is most brilliant, moving and inventive in cinema.

HD

We will explore the mystery of this almost instant success, and the universality of a silhouette that has lasted for over a century. We will relive the resurrection of these images in their former glory.

Marcello Mastroianni, one of the greatest cinema icons, is much more than a playboy. Throughout his 40 year-long career, with his unique style, he has personified every single aspect of the Italian male : charisma, melancholic tenderness, self-mockery, cleverness and a natural gift for appealing to all.

The film lets the actor speak for himself, in a sort of << imaginary autobiography >>. With the many interviews he gave throughout his career, the film builds its own interview, in its ideal form. Mastroianni, and his relatives and partners tell us about his life. Through the portrait of the most famous Italian actor, we try to solve the mystery of this indefinable and enchanting << Italian-style >>.

Rocky IV is an emblematic movie, and constitutes a chapter in popular culture. When it was released in 1985, audiences from all over the world flocked to movie theatres. Rocky IV hits the spot, hard.

Rocky IV is dually symbolic - it embodies both the victory of the American boxer over the Soviet one and the victory of neo-liberalism over a dwindling socialism. The film fed a global popular culture that steamrolled everything in the US, in Europe and in the Eastern bloc countries.

Still today, Rocky is held up as a model by some and is a subject of derision for others. An emblem of the 1980s, its culture and its heroes, the film will be the subject of an entertaining analysis of popular culture - which in itself is highly political.

After leaving Sennett's Keystone Studios, where he had spent his year of apprenticeship in cinema, Charles Chaplin became a worldwide star at 10 times his former salary by joining The Essanay Film Manufacturing Company in January 1915. For the first time, his name was on the credits (the series was called "Essanay-Chaplin brand"), and Essanay was the first to sell merchandising rights for a movie character.

In one year, Chaplin was to star in and direct 16 hilarious films, including his iconic The Tramp - each release breaking a new record in sales. Like the two previous series (Keystone and Mutual), these will be newly restored. They will sparkle! The restoration of the Essanay comedies will conclude the restoration of the Chaplin films, now 100 years old, and will amaze future generations in their second century.

In 1916, after a 2-year long career, Chaplin is already the most paid actor in the world. He signs for 12 new comedies with Mutual Film Corp. He has his own studio, and total control of the production of his films : unprecedented.

These 12 comedies shot between 1916 and 1917 are a fireworks of humor, invention and fun, maybe what Chaplin has done best in all his career. Success after success, the character of The tramp becomes more complex, and films like The Vagabond, One A.m. Or the Immigrant are jewels of skill and sophistication.

These ultimate restorations are the result of 3 long years of research in the world, and technological achievements. One century after their first release, these films do not have a wrinkle, and the pleasure of watching them is intact. Chaplin said "Shooting the Mutual comedies was the best moment of my life"

With 75 films, Cartoon Factory is both a historical monument and a moment of pleasure for children aged 7 to 77...

During the thirties in the US, cartoons were one of the major types of film. Walt Disney's contemporaries constantly innovated and created new and original worlds... A considerable amount of research, and reediting, done for ARTE by the best specialists of the genre, has saved a number of these cartoon classics. With more than 75 films, we rediscover Alice, as well as the fabulous adventures of Popeye and Olive. We also discover Bosco, Tom and Jerry, at the time when they were not yet a cat and a mouse... Cartoon Factory is both a historical monument and a moment of pleasure for children aged 7 to 77.

SUPERMAN

Launched in September 1941 with the release of the initial entry, Superman, the cartoons were produced by Max Fleischer. The first cartoon was received to critical acclaim and was nominated for an Academy Award.

The Superman shorts look like feature films, complete with tracking shots and a stunning variety of camera angles, each of which necessitates a new background. Artists duplicate real illumination, molding the characters with light and dark, and providing them with dramatic shadows. The films move at an accelerating pace, with cuts coming faster and faster toward the climaxes, propelled by Sammy Timberg's dynamic musical scores. Special effects involving fires, rays, and explosions set the screen ablaze.

The second cartoon, "The Mechanical Monsters", was released near the end of 1941. It features Superman battling an army of gigantic, flame-spewing, flying robots in a series of sensational scenes. Later special effects extravaganzas include "The Bulleteers", in which an airborne torpedo smashes through the skyscrapers of Metropolis, and "The Magnetic Telescope", in which an astronomer's harebrained invention sends an asteroid hurtling earthward. When not struggling with mad scientists, Superman takes on ferocious forces of nature like gorillas (in Terror on the Midway) or dinosaurs (The Arctic Giant). In 1942 Paramount Studios acquired Fleischer Studios and gave it the new name of "Famous Studios." They produced the last 8 of the 17 shorts and continued the series until 1943.

This collection is formed of 20 destinations as we discover world cultures, from Russia to Greece, via Brazil and the Antarctic, under the guidance of candid and curious globetrotter Bastien.

Based on experiences of his past trips or on personal accounts of the various people he has met, each episode features an aspect of that country's culture, via a resident he "met on his travels", in a tone that varies from the poetic to the light-hearted. Blending modernity and craftsmanship, the collection - adapted from the short film "Madagascar, a journey diary" (nominated for the Oscars 2011) - blends the digital technology of motion capture with hand-applied work in gouache and watercolour. The resulting films are veritable short animated travel logs.

This series is an unsettling journey to the heart of the infinitely small: decay. It is carried out using an innovative technique, the "Cellscope", a microscope usually used for medical purposes, which, when linked to a Smartphone, enables images to be enlarged 80 to 1,200 times.

This series plunges us into the strange and fascinating living world that is born from death, and that inhabits our daily lives. The story, a blend of science and poetry, is told by French actor Denis Lavant, and uses exceptional images to reveal everything that is beautiful, striking and mysterious about decomposition, in THE NIGHT OF THE LIVING. Bacteria, dendritic cells, collembola, yeast ... A composition on decomposition!

By the 1960s, legendary conceptual artist Donald Judd had grown tired of New York. That's when he remembered Marfa, a cowboy village lost in West Texas--the perfect place, he thought, to be free at last. Judd, one of the founders of minimalism, ended up turning the town into one of the world's leading places for contemporary art.

Today, despite the artist's death in 1994, Marfa still acts as a magnet for artistic refugees. What are all these modern-day "Marfians" looking for? In five subjective and suggested portraits, I [art] MARFA is a poetic postcard, sent from an eerie Texas ghost town that never destined itself to so much strangeness.

This drama is Valeria Bruni Tedeschi's adaptation of Anton Chekhov's favourite play. In a small garrison town, lost in the middle of the Russian countryside, three young women, who arrived there with their late father, a former brigade commander, dream of returning to Moscow where they spent their childhood. Entertained by military visits, the sisters find a semblance of a life. Macha, who married her dull husband at too early an age, falls in love with a commander. Olga finds renewed enthusiasm for life and Irina becomes engaged to a lieutenant.

But it is soon time for the troops to leave, the youngest sister's fiancé dies in a duel, and solitude once again takes over the lives of these three women, who become disillusioned recluses. The chronicle of several years of a life on the fringes of history and modernity, this four-act drama is an ironic portrayal of a youth without perspective or illusion, as though frozen in a deadly era. The strange mirror of a drifting country, Three Sisters captures the image of a society on the brink of a destiny that cannot be, and that is aware of its imminent end.
