Tales of love, sex, power, betrayal, heinous crimes, unbearable separations, atrocious revenge, and metamorphoses - the poetic force of the myths has crossed the centuries.

"The Great Myths" documentary series sets out to recount these ancient stories using animations created especially for the occasion, and illustrations chosen from the entire history of art. This dynamic blend, a bridge between modernity and history, ancient narrative and contemporary dramatic art, is a new way to discover or re-discover this part of our universal heritage.

Via six masterpieces, the film reveals the beauty of the spirit of Versailles of the 17th and 18th centuries. A unique homage to the people that crafted it, the furniture reveals the personal tastes of its commissioners, and portrays something that has ceased to exist!

These unique items of furniture that once belonged to Louis 14th, Louis 15th, Marie-Antoinette and Louis 16th have fascinating stories to tell: the tortoise-shell chest-of-drawers with inlays of brass; an astronomical clock - a veritable miracle of science; the most emblematic example of French furniture art in the world - the King's Desk; and the exquisite items made for Marie-Antoinette - the queen's jewellery case and the wheat-sheaf furniture.

This documentary recounts his story and through the man's story, that of the so-called "Action T4", which consisted of eliminating physical and mental disabilities and those people considered by the Nazi regime to be useless or "asocial".

Doctor Julius Hallervorden, a major name in the science of brain pathology, first benefited from, then contributed to the systematic assassination ordered by Hitler of German mentally ill persons, by recovering the brains of 690 victims. He nevertheless pursued a brilliant post-war career, in all impunity, and died covered in honours.

Between 1939 and 1945, at least 200,000 ill people were assassinated.

While the war raged on, Henry Kissinger, national security advisor to President Nixon, and Lê Duc Tho, member of the Vietnamese Politburo, held secret meetings in France. Exclusive interviews and undisclosed recording reveal what actually happened between these two men who remained worlds apart.

27 January 1973. After five years of negotiations in Paris, the Americans and the Vietnamese made peace, in what had been a difficult process.

3 months earlier, in September 1972, a preliminary agreement had been secretly signed in France between Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho. In Saigon, the ally of the Americans, Nguyen Van Thieu, refused to sign it. Under orders from President Nixon, Kissinger was to resume his secret negotiations in October 1972 with his North Vietnamese counterpart, offering him amendments he could not accept. In mid-December, negotiations were suspended and Le Duc Tho returned to Hanoi. Two hours later, North Vietnam and its capital Hanoi suffered a spate of bombings. The air strikes, including bombings from around a hundred B-52s, lasted twelve days. Nixon had warned: "We must punish the enemy in ways that he will really hurt".

How to understand this final act of "cruelty", this massive and destructive air offensive, when peace was signed just three weeks later?

Supported by previously unaired archives, this film plunges us into the heart of the secret negotiations, finally shedding light on the obscure logic of US action, and reveals the extent of the tragedy: even when peace had become the main objective of all players, each player had to show their determination to continue the war.

What exactly is public debt? And why has it been spiralling for years?

This documentary takes viewers on a fascinating journey through the rugged landscape of economics, and renders it more human. Fast-paced and dynamic, and packed with offbeat images, it recounts the history of sovereign debt from the late Middle Ages to the present day. It highlights at top speed the current crisis and points viewers in the direction of unexpected exit routes to safeguard the Euro zone from future crises.

Why does 3 quarters of European electronic waste escape recycling and end up illegally in landfill?

In the suburbs of Accra, the capital of Ghana, children play at dismantling scrapped electronic equipment, surrounded by foul smelling and toxic fumes, in a sadly-famous, uncontrolled rubbish dump. The film takes this site as its point of departure, and is driven forward by Ghanaian journalist Mike Anane, who is an expert on the environment. He wants to know why his country has become the trash can of the developed countries.

This lucid and efficient investigation by Cosima Dannoritzer (The Light Bulb Conspiracy) into several European countries, Asia and the U.S., reveals the apparatus of large-scale trafficking, as well as a complex chain of responsibility and collusion.

Now that the crisis (economic, financial and ecological) has taken a firm hold over Europe and the rest of the world, the "return to growth" is systematically put forward by political leaders on both right and left, as the key process that will help us emerge from the tunnel.

For the public, invoking a return to growth always raises the same questions: what exactly is growth? How did this economic concept progressively make its mark, to the point of becoming an intangible dogma? How can we continue to promote unlimited growth today, knowing that our planet's resources are limited and are even facing exhaustion? Are there any theoretical and practical alternatives to growth? What can we do on a local level to change the paradigm?

In the film, these concrete experiences alternate between the words of experts, echoing each other, and together outlining new ways to set into motion the vital transition, For each field embodying this transition, the film presents an initiative in the North and in the South to highlight the universality of the movement.

A documentary series about art and Gastronomy. Beginning with a famous masterpiece, historians, art historians and historians of food take us on a journey through food history and art. Acting as detectives, they give us keys in order to understand the painting and the painter, the historical context and how people ate at that time While the specialists deal with those topics, a three-stars chef explains what the masterpiece inspires in him and explains what he (or she) is going to cook as a result.

The chef is the guide of the show. He or she may interact with the specialists (accompanying them to a museum and asking the curator to give him some information about the painting for instance).

At the end, everyone who took part in the program meets with the chef at his restaurant (or in a place chosen by the chef) for a final discussion.

IN THE BELLY OF THE CITY

5 markets, 5 complex systems that play a crucial role in their city : Barcelona, Budapest, Vienna, Lyon and Turin. They all have a big belly : the city food market that nourishes a great part of their population.

We all know what a food market is. We're attracted by the electrifying colours, pulsing sounds and gorging products. But what do we know about how a food market actually works? How do enormous quantities of food reach there every day and where does it come from? Who decides the prices and puts together thousands of different vendors in huge but concentrated areas? In the Belly of the City graphs the changes that have taken place at the heart of the cities food supply systems from an entirely new perspective.

What if we watched Jean Paul Gaultier at work giving the definitive master class on what constitutes the essence of his work? Jean Paul Gaultier's work is making clothes, not putting on fashion shows, producing perfume, talking to the media or presenting programs on MTV. But making clothes. He sketches them, of course, but more importantly, he creates them by draping them, constructing them around the body of the fitting model.

Twelve of Jean Paul Gaultier's most iconic creations are re-created directly onto a fitting model, in front of the camera, in understated, white surroundings. Ten women's outfits and two men's outfits.

HD

Jean Paul Gaultier is with his head seamstress, Mireille. With a stock of materials at his disposal, he proceeds to create the "toile". In Haute Couture, the "toile" is the first stage, carried out using untreated, beige linen, which enables appraisal of the style. Like a first draft, the moment during which everything can still be changed, before the creation takes on its final shape. Jean Paul Gaultier at work can be viewed as a sequence shot, in which the garments materialize before our eyes, revealing how his thought process develops between ideas and material. Gaultier's oeuvre, recounted by himself, in the first person - like a lasting legacy of creativity.

Top models, actresses and businesswomen - two outstanding icons revealed. The 1990s produced a new kind of top model. They were beautiful girls but they were also much more than that. With their strong characters, the "supermodels" turned the codes of fashion upside down, and extended the boundaries of pop culture.

Among them, Eva Herzigova and Milla Jovovich immediately stood out. Both grew up far from the glamour of Hollywood, and made their mark without conforming to the stereotypes imposed by the Western dream machine. Leading photographer Peter Linbergh was one of the first to notice the two top models. This film sheds light on the lesser-known facets of two outstanding paths.

AN EYE ON YOU, CITIZENS UNDER SURVEILLANCE

A documentary about a worldwide phenomenon of society that profoundly jeopardises our personal freedom.

After the terrorist attacks of 11 September 2001, the United States granted itself exceptional and unimaginable powers of control and surveillance over all citizens in and beyond the US via mobile phone taps, and via unlimited access to personal emails, to computer hard disks and to all data produced by citizens in their personal and professional lives. This data, either disclosed in the eyes of the world or kept secret, could potentially serve securitarian states, whose unconfessed objective is to know everything about everybody.

On a hot evening of June, 1969, the police raids the "Stonewall Inn", a gay bar in New York City. Nothing out of the ordinary, since homosexuals were then often persecuted. But that night, the clients decided to fight back against the police forces all night long. This event is the starting point of a movement that would lead to the decriminalization of homosexuality in many countries in the world.

In the history of gays and lesbians, Stonewall is a tipping point. For up until that event, it was complicated to talk about homosexuality in movies, in music, even in literature. However, some writers, artists, but also private citizens, gave birth to a burgeoning gay culture that is hard to imagine today, since our collective memory has erased the very possibility of a homosexual expression before sexual liberation!

HD

The first chapter of this documentary explores these "hidden" years, the underground culture as well as a culture of gay subtexts, still very much alive today. Since the evolution of LGBT rights (Lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender) has accompanied the evolution of a gay culture that gradually managed to express itself more freely, the second part tells the story of the "after Stonewall": how gay culture came out of the closet, and into the mainstream.

In the mythical Eastern Ethiopian city of Harar, man and hyenas live in peace. Here, on the outskirts of the city, Youssouf Mume Saleh, or the "Hyena-man" as he is known, feeds a clan of spotted hyenas every evening. Elsewhere in the Horn of Africa, these animals can terrorize populations, but as Youssouf says himself, the hyenas are part of his family. He has given a name to each one of them.

Youssouf is one of the last guardians of a tradition that is over one hundred years old. Long ago, Harar signed a non-aggression pact with the hyenas, and that pact still exists today. The wild hyenas roam the streets of the city freely, and locals are not worried. They need these natural "rubbish collectors". In addition, the hyenas of Hara protect the population from attack by foreign hyenas.

We are in the heart of the mighty Amazon forest, on a narrow branch of the river. Here hides a strange animal that we do not expect to see thousands of kilometres from the ocean. The Amazon Pink River Dolphin, which looks like a living fossil, is one of the most mysterious species of the animal kingdom.

Where does it come from? How has this animal come to acclimate to this flooded, tropical rainforest environment? What links do they have to marine dolphins? Are they simple descendants of the marine species, or a distinct species that has survived through the ages and adapted to this lush environment?

Sarah Schwartz has been travelling the world, from big top to big top, for over twenty years. She has made the circus her world. A high wire at her feet leads her from one country to the next. In this collection, she invites us behind the scenes of the circus dream, revealing its highly singular world. Taking part in a convoy with Sarah Schwarz means discovering a country in a different way: through the steamed up window of a caravan, a different shade of world goes past, a nomadic world, a world of freedom.

With Sarah, we set out to discover a universe that will help us understand the countries visited, bringing us wisdom and knowledge, but also magic and poetry. From the family circus to contemporary circus, from the travelling circus to the permanent circus, we discover countries that are different from each other, yet are all planets in the same galaxy. Roll up, roll up, for a magical, brightly coloured world tour!

Discovering the world via its winds is the wild gamble of Arthur de Kersauson, a young urban adventurer who is curious, amusing and thirsty for knowledge.

For us, he sets out in search of: the Mistral in France, the Trade Winds in Reunion Island, the Chergui in Morocco, the Lodos in Turkey, the Blizzard in Quebec and the Loo in India.

The wind carves out the landscape of a country, and shapes its inhabitants, customs and culture. These entertaining and incisive road movies lead our traveller to make enriching and moving encounters, which are sometimes zany, and always exotic.

A keen extreme sportsman, Arthur also takes advantage of his quest to discover wind activities, in each country he travels through.

WORLD MEDICINE

A world tour of ancestral medicinal practices, among majestic landscapes.

Bernard Fontanille is an emergency doctor used to operations in difficult conditions. During his various missions he travelled all over the planet to cure, shield, heal, take care of people and to ease pain. Led by his strong sense of humanity and his curiosity, he makes us discover and shares with us the live of women and men caring for others, saving lives, and sometimes inventing new ways of treatment.

He also shows us traditional forms of medicine deeply rooted in the local culture. Through his various encounters and by presented methods he shows us the different realities of a country and also the universal link that unites a patient and his doctor: humanity and confidence.

In February 2013 a film crew led by documentary filmmaker David Sington will leave Montevideo in Uruguay for a voyage across the South Atlantic into the stormiest waters on Earth.

Their destination will be a rendezvous with the Saga Sea, a high-technology trawler operating in the Antarctic Ocean. It will be a voyage to the latest and possibly last frontier between industrial civilization and the natural world, in search of a mysterious sea creature which for decades has held the promise of transforming human nutrition: krill. Could the exploitation of krill improve diet across the globe, or will it simply lead to the collapse of one of the most important ecosystems on the planet?

Should cancer really be understood and treated as a "disease of the genes" or could another avenue - which was once abandoned but has now been taken up again - enable us to understand and treat it?

Researchers and doctors in various countries think so, and want to revolutionise treatment. For them, cancer is a disorder of cellular metabolism, which could be treated with a few simple molecules. This film invites us to take stock of their research.

When is a new global epidemic going to strike? At a time when new viruses are emerging at an unprecedented rate, and as Ebola is claiming lives in West Africa, this in-depth investigation examines this invisible threat.

In the space of 60 years, over 350 new infectious diseases have appeared, including SARS, H1N1, H5N1 and Ebola. The emergence of viruses seems to be speeding up. Experts are unanimously wondering: when will a new world-wide epidemic strike? The Plague, the Spanish flu, smallpox, AIDS - history has undergone infectious episodes that have decimated populations. But what is the state of research today? Are we better prepared? This film traces 3 particularly threatening viruses: the H7N9 flu virus in Asia; the Mers-CoV virus, related to SARS, which is active in the Middle East; and the Ebola virus, which is striking terror in West Africa.

Via the epic of continental drift, we travel to all 4 corners of the planet, to meet scientists who are carrying out state-of-the-art research on the most emblematic landscapes of each geological event.

With these scientists, and thanks to their work, we discover the sites in a new light - landscapes that we often see but rarely look at closely. The journey also establishes the key reference points of life alongside the geologic time scale - the appearance of life, of plants, of terrestrial life, dinosaurs and Man punctuate the geologic time scale.

Katsushika Hokusai was probably the most famous and most outstanding Japanese painter and printmaker of his generation, and was the artist whose fame was the quickest to cross the seas (his name has been popular in Europe for a long time).

A multi-faceted and all-round artist, his work is labyrinthine, probably comprising some 30,000 prints, not counting his oil paintings and the books he illustrated. The painter's life was rich, his work was prolific, and both were imbued with a multitude of signs most of which are unknown to us. Let's embark upon a journey and pay a "visit to Hokusai", in the company of his enlightened admirers - Japanese connoisseurs, who are familiar with all these signs.

This series of movies of 26 minutes, shows how a painted image echos the spirit of her time, to a particular historic event.

She reveals the poetic, sociological and political potential of the picture by penetrating inside the painting by underlining details thanks to a work of computer graphics which livens up characters, objects and sets. Every movie will tell the fascinating story of a creator and its production.
