The film tells the story of the tabloid press in Europe and in the US, from the glorious days of Fleet st. to the celebrity gossip websites, and the advent of a real tabloid culture

In an ironic and incisive manner, this documentary revisits the visual codes and intrigues of the gutter press (secrets, "exclusive" revelations etc) and its golden age in Europe and in the USA.

This documentary reveals how a gesture of emancipation has become an urban ritual and sums up the US today. A place with a high concentration of seats of power. A cradle of black music, but one that took a long time to recognise Hip Hop, the style that popularised the "fist bump".

Originally, shaking hands was a mark of trust. People held out an open hand to show they were not holding a weapon. Today, everybody is doing the "fist bump". How and why did a banal gesture created by 17th century black slaves - which subsequently became a symbol of black ghettos, rap and US sport - end up becoming part of Barack Obama's inauguration ceremony at the White House?

Via six masterpieces, the film reveals the beauty of the spirit of Versailles of the 17th and 18th centuries. A unique homage to the people that crafted it, the furniture reveals the personal tastes of its commissioners, and portrays something that has ceased to exist!

These unique items of furniture that once belonged to Louis 14th, Louis 15th, Marie-Antoinette and Louis 16th have fascinating stories to tell: the tortoise-shell chest-of-drawers with inlays of brass; an astronomical clock - a veritable miracle of science; the most emblematic example of French furniture art in the world - the King's Desk; and the exquisite items made for Marie-Antoinette - the queen's jewellery case and the wheat-sheaf furniture.

This documentary recounts his story and through the man's story, that of the so-called "Action T4", which consisted of eliminating physical and mental disabilities and those people considered by the Nazi regime to be useless or "asocial".

Doctor Julius Hallervorden, a major name in the science of brain pathology, first benefited from, then contributed to the systematic assassination ordered by Hitler of German mentally ill persons, by recovering the brains of 690 victims. He nevertheless pursued a brilliant post-war career, in all impunity, and died covered in honours.

Between 1939 and 1945, at least 200,000 ill people were assassinated.

Brazil is said to be a sleeping giant waking up to become one of the world leaders. Our film will tell country's history through the eyes of two families over several generations.

In one of the families, the slaves of before became domestic workers, and the former domestics are now employees, with fixed hours and living in their own homes, where they raise their own children rather than those of their bosses. They have reached the middle class. The other family descends from coffee barons and army generals. It is still a wealthy family, but yesterday's fortune was lost. Its members have witnessed many historical events. These two families will embody the evolutions of Brazil since the twenties until today. Our goal is to intersect the families saga and the nation's history with a broad range of photo and film archives, both public and private. We will complete this with a more global contextualization of the general History of the country.

From the Great Plains of the American West to the Rocky Mountains, from the Apache Reservation to the suburbs of Deadwood, bringing up the rear in convoys of pioneers or riding with desperados, Calamity Jane, Legend of the West recounts the true story of the American West and of one of the most unique of all its women, the fascinating Calamity Jane.

In addition to the myth, the film recounts the moving and raw reality of Martha Canary, alias Calamity Jane, whose life spanned the second half of the 19th century. She lived during the era of the last convoys to the Pacific, took part in the Indian Wars, contributed to the building of new towns, lived through epidemics, loneliness and the ravages of alcohol, witnessed the birth of journalism, contributed to writing the story of the Far West, and led the life of an independent woman.

While the war raged on, Henry Kissinger, national security advisor to President Nixon, and Lê Duc Tho, member of the Vietnamese Politburo, held secret meetings in France. Exclusive interviews and undisclosed recording reveal what actually happened between these two men who remained worlds apart.

27 January 1973. After five years of negotiations in Paris, the Americans and the Vietnamese made peace, in what had been a difficult process.

3 months earlier, in September 1972, a preliminary agreement had been secretly signed in France between Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho. In Saigon, the ally of the Americans, Nguyen Van Thieu, refused to sign it. Under orders from President Nixon, Kissinger was to resume his secret negotiations in October 1972 with his North Vietnamese counterpart, offering him amendments he could not accept. In mid-December, negotiations were suspended and Le Duc Tho returned to Hanoi. Two hours later, North Vietnam and its capital Hanoi suffered a spate of bombings. The air strikes, including bombings from around a hundred B-52s, lasted twelve days. Nixon had warned: "We must punish the enemy in ways that he will really hurt".

How to understand this final act of "cruelty", this massive and destructive air offensive, when peace was signed just three weeks later?

Supported by previously unaired archives, this film plunges us into the heart of the secret negotiations, finally shedding light on the obscure logic of US action, and reveals the extent of the tragedy: even when peace had become the main objective of all players, each player had to show their determination to continue the war.

This film examines the complex political, economic and military forces now at work in the Sahel with special emphasis on the expanding role of AFRICOM - the United State's newest and most innovative military command."

The recent upheavals in the Sahara -an upsurge in jihadist activity, a military coup in Mali and the French military's action to counter terrorism in the deserts of Gao and Timbukto - have put the region in the international spotlight. As the 21st Century begins, Northwest Africa has become an important locale in the Global War on Terror as well as the fierce competition for the continent's valuable natural resources.

What exactly is public debt? And why has it been spiraling for years?

This documentary takes viewers on a fascinating journey through the rugged landscape of economics, and renders it more human. Fast-paced and dynamic, and packed with offbeat images, it recounts the history of sovereign debt from the late Middle Ages to the present day. It highlights at top speed the current crisis and points viewers in the direction of unexpected exit routes to safeguard the Euro zone from future crises.

Young filmmaker and activist Joseph Paris came across the revolt of the Ukrainian feminist movement Femen in spring 2012, and followed them for one year.

Inspired by their actions, and supportive of their cause, Joseph Paris seeks to distinguish what it is their revolt and these events recount, by adding to the documentary the voices of French writer and poet Annie Le Brun and philosopher, who provide their perspective on this "radical pop feminism", thereby extending the filmmaker's own reflections.

The movie describes three areas in the world in the US, France and Japan where the landscapes are dominated by nuclear sites. It explains the origins of plutonium, and examines its evolution from a matter used for military purposes to one which is used for nuclear energy. It explores the scientific, industrial and geopolitical implications of its production.

The film begins with the story of the birth of plutonium production in the 40s in Hanford USA, then recounts the history of the nuclear reprocessing plant in La Hague, France, then tells of the Rokkasho nuclear site in Japan which is actually built on a seismic fault line. Citizens and local politicians share their thoughts and experiences on living near these nuclear sites. The film is based on archives made by scientists at that time and recreates the story of an industrial environment secretly born in arid and desolate locations. The sites, depicted through creative imagery, show us that humankind made an irreversible choice in the mid-twentieth century.

Kurdistan, which is split over Iran, Iraq, Turkey and Syria, could play a major role in a Middle East that has been torn apart. But who are the Kurds? What influence do they have? And who exactly is Abdullah Öcalan, leader of the Kurdistan Workers' Party? An enlightening investigation.

The siege of the Syrian city Kobane by the Islamic State troops put forward the forgotten people of the official history : the Kurdish people. In Turkey, where the majority of the Kurdish people is living, the various governments have perpetuated a policy of assimilation and denial with a rare violence. In 1983, the PKK - Kurdistan Workers Party - declared war on the Turkish state. This triggered a 30-year-old conflict, which caused the death of 40.000 people, the displacement of millions of people and the destruction of thousands of villages. Öcalan and the Kurdish issue describes twenty years of high hopes and disappointments in building a dialogue. It narrates a chronicle of one of the key conflicts in the Middle East, through the testimonies of those who lived it.

The film examines the mechanisms of Nazi extortion during the Second World War, and is interspersed with current issues surrounding restitutions.

It retraces the incredible stories of three major works having belonged to Jewish collectors, from their plundering by the Nazis though to their final restitution: Man with a Guitar by Georges Braque (Alphonse Kann collection), Herbstsonne by Egon Schiele (Karl Grunwald collection), and Sitting Woman by Henri Matisse (Paul Rosenberg collection).

During the war, the ERR run by Alfred Rosenberg, Hitler's art advisor, coordinated thousands of cases of plundering that were carried out all over Europe, and had the spoils delivered to the heart of the 3rd Reich in Berlin. There, the major works were taken to the offices and homes of high-ranking officials and the rest of them were stored in various places. At the end of the war, despite the diligence of organisations focused on their restitution, tens of thousands of works were conjured away. Each time one of them reappeared, unimaginable ownership battles ensued.

10 markets, 10 complex systems that play a crucial role in their city : Barcelona, Budapest, Vienna, Lyon, Turin, Firenze, Toulouse, Zagreb, Riga and Freiburg. They all have a big belly : the city food market that nourishes a great part of their population.

We all know what a food market is. We're attracted by the electrifying colours, pulsing sounds and gorging products. But what do we know about how a food market actually works? How do enormous quantities of food reach there every day and where does it come from? Who decides the prices and puts together thousands of different vendors in huge but concentrated areas? In the Belly of the City graphs the changes that have taken place at the heart of the cities food supply systems from an entirely new perspective.

What if we watched Jean Paul Gaultier at work giving the definitive master class on what constitutes the essence of his work?

Jean Paul Gaultier's work is making clothes, not putting on fashion shows, producing perfume, talking to the media or presenting programs on MTV. But making clothes. He sketches them, of course, but more importantly, he creates them by draping them, constructing them around the body of the fitting model.

12 of Jean Paul Gaultier's most iconic creations are re-created directly onto a fitting model, in front of the camera, in understated, white surroundings. 10 women's outfits and 2 men's outfits.

HD

In Haute Couture, the "toile" is the first stage, carried out using untreated, beige linen, which enables appraisal of the style. Like a first draft, the moment during which everything can still be changed, before the creation takes on its final shape. Jean Paul Gaultier at work can be viewed as a sequence shot, in which the garments materialize before our eyes, revealing how his thought process develops between ideas and material. Gaultier's oeuvre, recounted by himself, in the first person - like a lasting legacy of creativity.

Autism remains a mystery. However, the fact that there is no medical treatment is an absolute certainty. There is no solution for autism. People with autism will live with this disorder all their life and societies are all facing the same question: how to take care of them?

France lags behind on this subject. Comparing the experiences of other countries, Italy, Sweden, Germany, and Quebec, we will clarify the French situation and demonstrate that practices exist and allow to improve significantly the autistic's life. Every time it comes to real societal choices that reveal our various ways to approach difference. But there are in any case, no simple answers to this complex problem.

The history of homosexuality in pop culture is awash with secrets, unexpected developments, drama and major acts of courage, which form part of History in general.

It is no longer anything unusual to see homosexual characters in films or series. All the arts explore the theme, and numerous celebrities do not hide the fact that they are lesbian or gay. Yet not so long ago, it was a very complex matter to speak about homosexuality in popular culture, and those who did so had to find ingenious ways to approach the subject, and thus nudge mentalities forward to make homosexuals more accepted by the general public - and by themselves.

Worldwide.

The film takes us to Hamburg, Berlin, Paris, Istanbul, London, Toulouse, Lyon and other cities, and recounts how towns and cities are being constructed and transformed, and what space is being left in them for citizens.

Public spaces, the spaces we live our collective lives in, are becoming privatised and marginalised, and run the risk of disappearing altogether. This investigation examines the excesses of the new tools of urbanism, and explores the citizen, political and artistic reactions that are endeavouring to oppose them, in France and in Europe.

Since the late 2000s and the start of the "Mad Men" series, a retro wave has swept over Western pop culture.

From the cinema (an Oscar for "The Artist", and "Gatsby" with Leonardo Di Caprio presented at Cannes), to television ("The Hours", "Peaky Blinders" and "Fleming"), via fashion with Dita Von Teese's version of the fifties' figure, and the Swing Kids' look of the 1930s - never before has our present been so imbued with the past. The culture of creation may be taking a look in the rear-view mirror, but young urbanites have taken things a step further by turning retro culture into a veritable way of day-to-day life.

In Paris, New York, Berlin and London, this "neo-retro" community adopts not only a quaint appearance, but also the values and codes of the era (the 1920s to the 1960s). Some denounce the stagnation of pop culture over the last couple of decades and see this retro culture as a sign of a certain cultural regression, but many others believe vintage culture enables us to better live in the present.

In the mythical Eastern Ethiopian city of Harar, man and hyenas live in peace. Here, on the outskirts of the city, Youssouf Mume Saleh, or the "Hyena-man" as he is known, feeds a clan of spotted hyenas every evening. Elsewhere in the Horn of Africa, these animals can terrorize populations, but as Youssouf says himself, the hyenas are part of his family. He has given a name to each one of them.

Youssouf is one of the last guardians of a tradition that is over one hundred years old. Long ago, Harar signed a non-aggression pact with the hyenas, and that pact still exists today. The wild hyenas roam the streets of the city freely, and locals are not worried. They need these natural "rubbish collectors". In addition, the hyenas of Hara protect the population from attack by foreign hyenas.

At a time when all over the world conflicts between man and wild animals are increasing, here exists a unique relationship of cohabitation between man and a major carnivore. This film recounts the story of this exceptional and fascinating man-animal relationship.

Obeying a mysterious annual call, tens of thousands of marbled groupers congregate in the sumptuous Fakarava Atoll in French Polynesia to reproduce.

In synchronisation with the full moon of June or July, the event is a veritable choreography that is as brief as it is spectacular, attracting all sorts of wild, under-water predators.

For the first time, a team of scientists, divers and filmmakers will monitor and survey the channel of an atoll in order to render visible and comprehensible the hidden mechanisms of what is the lagoon's real lifeline, announcing a moment of frenzy ... between life and death.

In the heart of the mighty Amazon forest, hides a strange animal that we do not expect to see thousands of kilometres from the ocean. The Amazon Pink River Dolphin, which looks like a living fossil, is one of the most mysterious species of the animal kingdom.

Where does it come from? How has this animal come to acclimate to this flooded, tropical rainforest environment? What links do they have to marine dolphins? Are they simple descendants of the marine species, or a distinct species that has survived through the ages and adapted to this lush environment?

Unknown for a long time, the pink dolphin remains a mystery to the scientists struggling to reconstruct its evolutionary course. Now thanks to a recent discovery, scientists are finally able to understand more about the mystery of the pink dolphin and its origins.

Sarah Schwartz has been travelling the world, from big top to big top, for over twenty years. She has made the circus her world. A high wire at her feet leads her from one country to the next. In this collection, she invites us behind the scenes of the circus dream, revealing its highly singular world. Taking part in a convoy with Sarah Schwarz means discovering a country in a different way: through the steamed up window of a caravan, a different shade of world goes past, a nomadic world, a world of freedom.

With Sarah, we set out to discover a universe that will help us understand the countries visited, bringing us wisdom and knowledge, but also magic and poetry. From the family circus to contemporary circus, from the travelling circus to the permanent circus, we discover countries that are different from each other, yet are all planets in the same galaxy. Roll up, roll up, for a magical, brightly coloured world tour!

A generous and poetic road movie, off the beaten track. On his old orange Mobylette, François Skyvington invites us on a unique trip around France and Germany. Taking side roads and byroads, he lets us in on his fun and informative one-of-a-kind encounters.

Director and author (of "My Beautiful Mobylette", published by Ouest France), François Skyvington has, in the past, been a globetrotter, a courier, a fairground worker, an antique-dealer and a barman. An adventurer in search of new encounters and stories, he travels through France and Germany on his old orange moped from Arles to Munich, via Ushant and Berlin.

This series of documentaries is an invitation to meet the most incredible trees in Europe and to understand the particular relationship between trees and people who live around them.

For their longevity, their outstanding dimensions, the legends they inspired, the memories shared and passed through generations, these trees are remarkable. But they also exist thanks to the men who remarked them. More than living totems, trees are ecosystems able to develop fantastic strategies to survive.

The high-quality production of the series reveals the trees' magnificence through an unprecedented journey from their roots to their top (using drones, time-lapses, fitted machinery). The stories of men and women having developed strong ties with the trees help create a connection between the human world and the plant kingdom, unveiling a common history. Each film leads us to discover two trees located in two European countries, in order to better grasp this unique natural heritage, anchored in specific places and cultures.

WORLD MEDICINE

A world tour of ancestral medicinal practices, among majestic landscapes.

Bernard Fontanille is an emergency doctor used to operations in difficult conditions. During his various missions he travelled all over the planet to cure, shield, heal, take care of people and to ease pain. Led by his strong sense of humanity and his curiosity, he makes us discover and shares with us the live of women and men caring for others, saving lives, and sometimes inventing new ways of treatment.

He also shows us traditional forms of medicine deeply rooted in the local culture. Through his various encounters and by presented methods he shows us the different realities of a country and also the universal link that unites a patient and his doctor: humanity and confidence.

Six women. Amy, Heike, Ida, Merethe, Otaciana and Pabitra. They live in Canada, Germany, Argentina, Denmark, Nepal and Brazil. They have never met each other, but have many things in common. Although they are neither activists nor intellectuals, they all possess a sense of urgency in the face of the deterioration of our planet, which they see as a threat to the future of their children, and to humanity in general.

They form part of an increasingly large body of voices that are speaking up to demand an economic and ecological transition that will take on the challenges of the 21st century. On their own individual levels, they show that things can be done differently right now, by taking part in initiatives that lead to a fairer and more sustainable society, in the area of food production (urban agriculture), energy (transition towns) and money (local currencies). Their voices are paving the way for our future.

Can a river be restored, just like work of art or a castle? This film recounts the fascinating ecological adventure that is gaining ground, worldwide, of giving back a little space to landscaped rivers, and the freedom they so desperately require.

In December 2003, the rapid rise in the level of the Rhône turned to tragedy. The river ruptured its embankments, claiming lives and displacing thousands, amid widespread shock. It had been thought the river was under control, but it was observed that the frantic and anarchic planning of the river - in order to tame it and subjugate it to our economic and energy needs - was partly responsible for the catastrophe.

Too many embankments, too many dams, too many roads and railways, too much concrete ... squeezing the Rhône, crowding it out and hemming it in. With its landscapes spoilt and its biodiversity impoverished, it is now even becoming a danger for humans. And so the decision has been made to "restore" it.

Pierre Bonnard is one of the great masters of 20th century painting. A painter of the intimate, driven by an obsession with landscapes and domestic scenes, his timeless oeuvre earned him great criticism in his time.

How did Bonnard, a private, anxious man, who lived an ordinary day-to-day existence, become the incontestable painter of intimacy, capable of transforming reality into a unique and incandescent world?

Through his paintings, his personal notebooks, his correspondence with Matisse and Vuillard, the photographs he was so fond of, and the places he lived, which he painted and exalted time and time again, the film plunges viewers into the world of this master of colour.

In 19th century Paris, for both political and economic reasons, Parisian prostitution became a social phenomenon on an unprecedented scale. From the seedy part of town to the salons of the wealthy bourgeoisie, Paris became the capital of sex. During this industrial revolution era, doctors and moralists, cops and robbers, bosses and workers all used prostitution - and it inevitably attracted artists.

From the mid 19th century, it was as though prostitution had become a central, key theme of artistic creation. The film recounts the rise and metamorphosis of prostitution in the 19th century, through the eyes of artists, and the pictorial revolution that accompanied it. By exploring the representation of prostitution in 19th century arts, the film dwells on this very specific moment in the history of the "world's oldest profession".

Diego Velázquez, the artist ceaselessly in search of the human truth through the treatment of the light and the space and in the way he roams around things, is a documentary maker before his time. His work full of boldness marks an essential stage in the history of paint.

From the paints of Velázquez and especially what gets free of it, the movie goes off to explore the peculiarity of the "painter of the painters" and of the artistic and esthetic revolution which Diego Velázquez caused. Since the "Venus with a Mirror" up to the mirror of Ménines, the movie escapes any didacticism and attempts to recreate the exceptional emotional link between the work of Velázquez and the look of the public, between the eye of the painter and the one of the spectator. Between his life and our lives.

This film provides the opportunity to follow an outstanding project - the restoration of one of the Louvre Museum's greatest icons.

Victory of Samothrace. The masterpiece of Greek sculpture attracts millions of visitors every year, yet is little known to the general public. Archaeologists and art historians have been carrying out research on it for many years in order to clear up some of its remaining mysteries.

Based on the major stages of its restoration, this film recounts the history of a two-thousand-year-old sculpture that today has lost its head and arms, and that travelled to Paris from a small Greek island nearly 150 years ago, in "kit form". The monument - one of the most spectacular and accomplished expressions of Greek sculpture of the Hellenistic period - has dominated the Louvre Museum's Daru staircase since 1883.

Leading contemporary artists delegate whole sections of the production of their works. Increasingly today, contemporary art is the result of a collective effort.

Engineers, designers, architects, artisans, workers, glass-makers, smelters, blacksmiths, coppersmiths, jewellery-makers, "highbrows" and "helping hands", whether they possess high-tech or ancestral know-how - they all work in the shadows to produce today's art. We follow the production of two works, created by two leading international artists - Xavier Veilhan and Wim Delvoye - from conception to completion.

This collection explores history of art in a totally new way. Each film is a journey, an investigation and an adventure. The painting comes to life, as animation overrides the limits of the frame, taking us to the heart of the canvass and plunging us into its era and history.

The great works of the past portray abundant testimonies, and are imbued with secrets and are teeming with mysteries. Beneath the surface of the painting, details awaken, to recount the spirit of the times and the vagaries of History, such as wars, revolutions, economic transformation, scientific discovery, beliefs and schools of thought.

Adapted from Dan Franck's literary trilogy Bohemian Paris, Libertad!, Midnight - The documentary series made up of six episodes plunges us into Parisian life in the beginning of the twentieth century, a hotbed of artistic creation with the blossoming of Fauvism, Cubism, Dadaism, and surrealism.

Through illustrations, animation and original archives, the film will trace the highs and lows, scandals and celebrations, tragedies and the triumphs that shaped the phenomenal period of Modern Art from the basement of the "Bateau-lavoir" in 1900 to the last shudders of World War II.

The main characters are called Picasso, Max Jacob, Stein, Apollinaire, Hemingway, Matisse, Cocteau, Kiki... artists, art dealers, muses who came to France from all over Europe and left an indelible mark on the 20th century. These glorious subversives were adventurers before becoming heroes.

Everyone knows the Hobbit and the Lord of the Rings, now discover the universe of Tolkien and the legends that inspired them.

John Howe, the famous illustrator of Tolkien's novels and the conceptual artist for Peter Jackson's films, decided to find out more, and set off in search of the legends - and the places that gave rise to them.

From the enchanted forest of Brocéliande to the sets of the New Zealand studios, Looking for the Hobbit plunges us into a universe we could never imagine existed. A quest to the very roots of our imagination.

We draw upon Philip K. Dick's work as well as various cinematographic adaptations of his novels (Blade Runner, Minority Report, Total Recall, and more) in order to illustrate the extent to which K. Dick's oeuvre foretold the world that has become our own today.

"Because of Philip K. Dick" will take the viewer on a fascinating journey where he will get to know this extraordinary writer and to observe our contemporary society with a critical eye by delving into three of K. Dick's main obsessions : The human being and his double, A controlled society and What is reality ?

The word "Borsalino" today designates a felt hat. The Borsalino family brand has become a household name, like that of Tupperware, Kleenex or Walkman.

The quality felt hat, born in a small family factory in Alessandria in the 1850s, rose in status from manufactured object to veritable international myth when the craftsmanship of a small provincial town met the Hollywood dream. This film recounts the history of the manufacture of this myth, which has close ties to the history of cinema in the early 20th century.

Marcello Mastroianni, one of the greatest cinema icons, is much more than a playboy. Throughout his 40 year-long career, with his unique style, he has personified every single aspect of the Italian male : charisma, melancholic tenderness, self-mockery, cleverness and a natural gift for appealing to all.

The film lets the actor speak for himself, in a sort of << imaginary autobiography >>. With the many interviews he gave throughout his career, the film builds its own interview, in its ideal form. Mastroianni, and his relatives and partners tell us about his life. Through the portrait of the most famous Italian actor, we try to solve the mystery of this indefinable and enchanting << Italian-style >>.

Rocky IV is an emblematic movie, and constitutes a chapter in popular culture. When it was released in 1985, audiences from all over the world flocked to movie theatres. Rocky IV hits the spot, hard.

Rocky IV is dually symbolic - it embodies both the victory of the American boxer over the Soviet one and the victory of neo-liberalism over a dwindling socialism. The film fed a global popular culture that steamrolled everything in the US, in Europe and in the Eastern bloc countries.

Still today, Rocky is held up as a model by some and is a subject of derision for others. An emblem of the 1980s, its culture and its heroes, the film will be the subject of an entertaining analysis of popular culture - which in itself is highly political.

The job-hunt jungle, the fringe economy, the hassles of switching employers almost as often as you change your socks - life reduced to the net hourly wage... A comical chronicle of the world of temping.

Seb and Elise are adventurers, on the lookout for the slightest job. They get brief glimpses of what goes on in the world of work, when company doors swing open for an instant. But then the door slams shut and they're outside, awaiting their next contract.

Supermarket checker, pizza deliverer, "interactive" actor, sorter at the recycling center... Their temporary jobs are tedious and/or absurd, their bosses are toxic, and their customers are obnoxious.

Worse yet, it's all true!

By the 1960s, legendary conceptual artist Donald Judd had grown tired of New York. That's when he remembered Marfa, a cowboy village lost in West Texas--the perfect place, he thought, to be free at last. Judd, one of the founders of minimalism, ended up turning the town into one of the world's leading places for contemporary art.

Today, despite the artist's death in 1994, Marfa still acts as a magnet for artistic refugees. What are all these modern-day "Marfians" looking for? In five subjective and suggested portraits, I [art] MARFA is a poetic postcard, sent from an eerie Texas ghost town that never destined itself to so much strangeness.

This series is an unsettling journey to the heart of the infinitely small: decay. It is carried out using an innovative technique, the "Cellscope", a microscope usually used for medical purposes, which, when linked to a Smartphone, enables images to be enlarged 80 to 1,200 times.

This series plunges us into the strange and fascinating living world that is born from death, and that inhabits our daily lives. The story, a blend of science and poetry, is told by French actor Denis Lavant, and uses exceptional images to reveal everything that is beautiful, striking and mysterious about decomposition, in THE NIGHT OF THE LIVING. Bacteria, dendritic cells, collembola, yeast ... A composition on decomposition!

A plunge into a compelling thriller that revisits the codes of noir film. This intoxicating crime fiction is set in modern-day Paris and features a directionless youth threatened by terrifying predators.

46 year-old police officer Michel Serrero lives on his own with his 15 year-old daughter Clara. When he finds out that his daughter has developed a drug problem and that he is suffering from an incurable neurological disease, he decides he has nothing left to lose, and takes action. Unknown to his superiors, he infiltrates an exceedingly violent network that is planning to flood Paris with a devastating, new, synthetic drug. He risks everything to save his daughter.

Romance and police investigations at the heart of an animal welfare network. Cédric is a Commander of the Urban Safety Brigade in Lyon. Estelle is a vet and an activist in an animal defence association. They cross each other's paths in a supermarket during an event staged against eating meat. They are attracted to each other, talk things through, and start to get to know each other.

But some members of the association that Estelle is a member of are getting carried away in their stand against animal rearing conditions in the food industry. The action they are planning to carry out against an industrial pig farm gets violent, and Estelle stands accused. How will she react when she discovers the association is using violence? Will it strengthen or destroy her growing love for Cédric?

This drama is Valeria Bruni Tedeschi's adaptation of Anton Chekhov's favourite play. In a small garrison town, lost in the middle of the Russian countryside, three young women, who arrived there with their late father, a former brigade commander, dream of returning to Moscow where they spent their childhood. Entertained by military visits, the sisters find a semblance of a life. Macha, who married her dull husband at too early an age, falls in love with a commander. Olga finds renewed enthusiasm for life and Irina becomes engaged to a lieutenant.

But it is soon time for the troops to leave, the youngest sister's fiancé dies in a duel, and solitude once again takes over the lives of these three women, who become disillusioned recluses. The chronicle of several years of a life on the fringes of history and modernity, this four-act drama is an ironic portrayal of a youth without perspective or illusion, as though frozen in a deadly era. The strange mirror of a drifting country, Three Sisters captures the image of a society on the brink of a destiny that cannot be, and that is aware of its imminent end.
