ANGKOR REDISCOVERED

How did Angkor become the largest, 13th century city ever built?

Using the most sophisticated technologies in conjunction with research focusing on statues, casts, and documents handed down by Louis Delaporte - one of the first explorers of Angkor in the 19th century - researchers have been able to uncover how Khmer temples operated, the meaning of their architecture, and how the capital of the Empire grew to become the largest city in the world at the end of the 13th century.

FURNITURE OF VERSAILLES: FROM THE SUN KING TO THE REVOLUTION (THE)

Via six masterpieces, the film reveals the beauty of the spirit of Versailles of the 17th and 18th centuries. A unique homage to the people that crafted it, the furniture reveals the personal tastes of its commissioners, and portrays something that has ceased to exist!

These unique items of furniture that once belonged to Louis 14th, Louis 15th, Marie-Antoinette and Louis 16th have fascinating stories to tell: the tortoise-shell chest-of-drawers with inlays of brass; an astronomical clock - a veritable miracle of science; the most emblematic example of French furniture art in the world - the King's Desk; and the exquisite items made for Marie-Antoinette - the queen's jewellery case and the wheat-sheaf furniture.

Tales of love, sex, power, betrayal, heinous crimes, unbearable separations, atrocious revenge, and metamorphoses - the poetic force of the myths has crossed the centuries.

"The Great Myths" documentary series sets out to recount these ancient stories using animations created especially for the occasion, and illustrations chosen from the entire history of art. This dynamic blend, a bridge between modernity and history, ancient narrative and contemporary dramatic art, is a new way to discover or re-discover this part of our universal heritage.

From Roosevelt to Barack Obama, while also exploring the stories of John F. Kennedy, Richard Nixon, Ronald Reagan, Bill Clinton and Georges W. Bush, an exploration of 100 years of the American presidency.

How does a single man manage to impose himself as the foremost figure embodying a whole nation? This well-documented and informative film revisits 100 years of US presidencies and reveals the fundamental ingredients in the manufacturing of a head of state: virility, empathy, humanism, etc. And of course the American Dream...

This 52' film will look at the profound metamorphoses the image of the President of the United States underwent since the start of the 20th century.

This documentary recounts his story and through the man's story, that of the so-called "Action T4", which consisted of eliminating physical and mental disabilities and those people considered by the Nazi regime to be useless or "asocial".

Doctor Julius Hallervorden, a major name in the science of brain pathology, first benefited from, then contributed to the systematic assassination ordered by Hitler of German mentally ill persons, by recovering the brains of 690 victims. He nevertheless pursued a brilliant post-war career, in all impunity, and died covered in honours.

Between 1939 and 1945, at least 200,000 ill people were assassinated.

On 13th June 1929, the yellow bird took off for the first European transatlantic flight. Half an hour after, the pilots found a stowaway on board...

In the early 20th century, the crossing of the North Atlantic became one of the greatest challenges for pilots. Governments and companies paid large amounts of money to those daring enough to take part in this dangerous adventure. In 1929 the French government banned atlantic flights, in an attempt to put at end to the deaths in this kind of flight.

Attempts started to be made furtively.

3 French pilots managed to fly illegally to Southampton and ship their disassembled airplane to the United States, trying to return to Paris from there. On 13th june 1929, after several weeks' wait, the yellow bird took off from old orchard beach in maine.

Half an hour into the flight, the pilots found a stowaway on board. Despite this, they decided to keep flying, aware that, given the extra weight and the limited amount of fuel, they would never reach their destination.

On the occasion of Elizabeth II 90's birthday (in 2016), this documentary offers an iconoclastic and distanced look of the Monarchy and the British society.

Few countries in the world have experienced an economic, social, cultural and artistic evolution as important as the United Kingdom in these last sixty years.

Based on unpublished archival footage and exclusive interviews (singers Paul McCartney and Keith Richards, writers Martin Amis, Ian McEwan and Salman Rushdie, artists David Hockney and Damien Hirst, actress Helen Mirren as well as leading politicians), off off main stream Ballad for a Queen is an historic ambulation in various symbolic places of England, an unprecedented portrait of the British Monarchy and its relations with the british society these last decades.

Brazil is said to be a sleeping giant waking up to become one of the world leaders. Our film will tell country's history through the eyes of two families over several generations.

In one of the families, the slaves of before became domestic workers, and the former domestics are now employees, with fixed hours and living in their own homes, where they raise their own children rather than those of their bosses. They have reached the middle class. The other family descends from coffee barons and army generals. It is still a wealthy family, but yesterday's fortune was lost. Its members have witnessed many historical events. These two families will embody the evolutions of Brazil since the twenties until today. Our goal is to intersect the families saga and the nation's history with a broad range of photo and film archives, both public and private. We will complete this with a more global contextualization of the general History of the country.

From the Great Plains of the American West to the Rocky Mountains, from the Apache Reservation to the suburbs of Deadwood, bringing up the rear in convoys of pioneers or riding with desperados, Calamity Jane, Legend of the West recounts the true story of the American West and of one of the most unique of all its women, the fascinating Calamity Jane.

In addition to the myth, the film recounts the moving and raw reality of Martha Canary, alias Calamity Jane, whose life spanned the second half of the 19th century. She lived during the era of the last convoys to the Pacific, took part in the Indian Wars, contributed to the building of new towns, lived through epidemics, loneliness and the ravages of alcohol, witnessed the birth of journalism, contributed to writing the story of the Far West, and led the life of an independent woman.

Winston Spencer Churchill, Nobel Prize winner, hero of World War II. Untouchable? One of the most intriguing stories of World War II as it has never been shown before.

Churchill, a name typically associated with braveness and altruism. Recently found evidence from Soviet and British sources however brings up questions about Churchill's doings in the conferences of Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam.

Why did he agree to give Stalin large parts of Poland, thus dramatically shifting the borders of Europe?

Churchill's fear that Stalin would cut the frail bond between them is a recurrent theme.

Each of the pointed animatics stands for a key moment in history, seen through Churchill's eyes.

The story of two world leaders in times of war - it is also the story of Poland.

For 60 years, Korea has been divided into 2 States, 2 diametrically opposed societies. How did this state of affairs come about? Is reunification still possible?

On each side of the unbridgeable DMZ, the military and ideological wall symbolizing the separation, 2 political systems have developed in absolute opposition. There is no lack of North-South antagonisms, one-party dictatorship, self-sufficiency and nuclear arms race in the North, Westernization and fast growing economy (Asian Tiger) and in the south. 2 Korea(s) that share the dream of reunification, despite incessant diplomatic tensions.

But attempts to reunite are in a constant state of flux due to political, geostrategic, national and international interests.

Can the reunification of the 2 Koreas be done without the consent of the great powers and their local interests? What if the solution was a reunification done by the Korean themselves, away from divergent and changing interests of Washington, Beijing, Moscow, Tokyo, a policy of peaceful and long term reunification. Away from stereotypes, and for the first time, South Koreans and North Koreans have agreed to tell the whole history of the Korean peninsula in this film.

Award-winning filmmaker Jihan El Tahri exposes an intimate autopsy of Egypt's contemporary history from 1952 to 2011, including its role on the international stage. Political, military and religious key characters, and personalities from the civil society, will provide an in-depth understanding of how revolution became inevitable.

By interweaving the 4 major following themes (The Army, The Moslem Brotherhood, International relations and the role of civil society in the country), a full multi-dimensional picture of Egypt's reality will emerge.

This will also allow us to grasp the specific style and character of each President and the delicate balance each forged to maintain their rule. Ultimately, it is an autopsy of the road from aspirations for an Independent, modern and secular Egypt to the triumph of both the despotism of the military establishment and Islamism.

The story will be told through anecdotes and untold stories by decision makers and the tales of ordinary people. We will delve into details of the chosen events through unique access to personal archive, declassified documents and unreleased photos and footage. Most important, we will use flamboyant Egyptian feature films depicting historic and political events as a form of archive material that helps to tell the story and allows us to capture the essence and atmosphere of each era.

At the turn of the 20th century, they crossed the Atlantic Ocean leaving a miserable, persecuted or uncertain existence in Europe for New York's wide avenues, Brooklyn's profitable gambling dens or Hollywood's Highlights.

Like 12 millions of other emigrants, they landed on Ellis Island, first outpost of the American federal immigration station in the Upper New York Bay, ultimate gateway to the United-States of America. In those decisive hours, when their fates do not belong to them and are in someone else's hands, where federal immigration inspectors decide who is approved and who is sent home, the Melting Pot was born, built up of the teeming masses arriving from the Old Continent.

Rewriting the story of some exemplary destinies for a few, among the anonymous and long-forgotten voices of the other immigrants, we will relate the greatest european tragedies of the first half of the 20th century to an ambivalent America, which welcomes through successive waves, an immigration who will recreate and embody the << American Dream >>.

Tunisia, October 2011. 10 months after the Revolution, the first free Tunisian elections brought to power an Islamist party with a low international public profile: Ennahdha.

At the time, the party was keen to project the image of a new, pluralistic and democratic Islamism. But 2 years on, the failure to deliver on major reforms or to continue the momentum of the Revolution is palpable.

Ennahdha encapsulates the passions and contradictions of post-revolutionary Tunisia, the last country to still defend the ideals of the Arab Spring. By plunging into the heart of its still-little-known history, and by following its current major figures, we discover the issues of political Islam in Tunisia and far beyond, in the Arab world.

From 1889 to 1949, General Kanji Ishiwara's military, ideological and political career took in the key moments of Japanese History, in a most spectacular and novel-like way. It included the forced opening of Japan to the West under the Meiji government, the Hiroshima disaster, the attack on China, as well as the Tokyo Trials, and Pearl Harbour.

Most Europeans believe the Second World War started on 1st September 1939, the day the German Army invaded Poland. They also think that the conflict spread to Asia on 7 September 1941 when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor. In fact, the origins of the conflict go back well before then, namely on 18 September 1931 when Manchuria was invaded by a now-forgotten Japanese general: Ishiwara Kanji. From the 1920s onwards, he set out to propel Japan on a path of confrontation with America and its Allies.

This fascinating story sheds a new light on the Pacific War. One of its many strong points is the fact that Ishiwara filmed his men in the military, his daily life, his social life, by himself with a Pathé Baby 9.5mm. A unique opportunity to see this period through the eyes of one of its key players.

From the American preparations to the capture of Saddam Hussein, this documentary takes a fresh look at the invasion of Iraq through the accounts of Iraqis.

From previously unaired accounts of Iraqis, including former soldiers and leaders, civilians, future insurgents, journalists and opponents in exile, the film retraces, in minute detail, the critical year of the invasion, with as its counterpoint, the tales of members of the US military and reporters who were present during the intervention.

In these previously unaired images, we discover US military operations from the inside, but also - and more importantly - scenes of splendour of a dictatorship caught up in lies and unprepared for war.

By counterbalancing the official media scenario put forward by the Americans, this documentary provides an understanding of how, from an easy war in the face of a depleted country, the United States found themselves entangled in a civilian insurrection led by a disillusioned people, who they did not even attempt to understand and who they drove to revolt.

While the war raged on, Henry Kissinger, national security advisor to President Nixon, and Lê Duc Tho, member of the Vietnamese Politburo, held secret meetings in France. Exclusive interviews and undisclosed recording reveal what actually happened between these two men who remained worlds apart.

27 January 1973. After five years of negotiations in Paris, the Americans and the Vietnamese made peace, in what had been a difficult process.

3 months earlier, in September 1972, a preliminary agreement had been secretly signed in France between Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho. In Saigon, the ally of the Americans, Nguyen Van Thieu, refused to sign it. Under orders from President Nixon, Kissinger was to resume his secret negotiations in October 1972 with his North Vietnamese counterpart, offering him amendments he could not accept. In mid-December, negotiations were suspended and Le Duc Tho returned to Hanoi. Two hours later, North Vietnam and its capital Hanoi suffered a spate of bombings. The air strikes, including bombings from around a hundred B-52s, lasted twelve days. Nixon had warned: "We must punish the enemy in ways that he will really hurt".

How to understand this final act of "cruelty", this massive and destructive air offensive, when peace was signed just three weeks later?

Supported by previously unaired archives, this film plunges us into the heart of the secret negotiations, finally shedding light on the obscure logic of US action, and reveals the extent of the tragedy: even when peace had become the main objective of all players, each player had to show their determination to continue the war.

3 destinies, 3 perspectives, from the forbidden country of the Arab Revolution. A country that has been forgotten by the West. These images are extremely rare. Outstanding, clandestinely filmed footage.

In the last year, the repression has caused 60 deaths. That is a lot for this small country with a population of 600,000, run by the Al Khalifa royal family.

The people of Bahrain are demanding the same thing as the Syrians, Egyptians and Tunisians - democracy and freedom. But the rest of the world seems convinced that nothing is happening in Bahrain.

Yet every day for the last year, men and women have been taking to the streets and risking their lives demanding freedom and democracy.

For 1 month, Stéphanie Lamorré secretly filmed the violently suppressed demonstrations in the heart of the besieged districts. She brought back the story of her immersion, through the perspective of three women. These women are courageous activists, who explain how invisible their revolution is. They explain how to make the insurrection against the authorities happen, and how to recognise it.

Can we dismantle our nuclear power plants? An alarming report on the dangers of deconstructing nuclear stations.

From France to the USA to Germany, the countries that have banked on nuclear energy are today facing a new challenge: decommissioning their power plants that are either ageing or are definitively ceasing activity.

40 years ago, their designers did not foresee that, once the plants had become too old and therefore dangerous, they would need to be dismantled, and that highly radioactive wastes would need to be stocked. Although both plant operators and nuclear safety authorities claim they are in full control of the decommissioning process, the reality is somewhat different.

An unprecedented and chilling investigation into the invisible weapon of Bashar al-Assad's regime: the kidnapping, torture and murder of tens of thousands of Syrians.

Images of the first peaceful protests of March 2011 have become a vague, almost fanciful memory. The Syria of 2015 has sunk into civil war and absolute chaos. Chaos caused by the over-mediatised brutality of the self proclaimed Islamic State. Chaos, also and above all, caused by the invisible and little known weapon of Bashar al-Assad's regime: the kidnapping, torture and murder, since 2011, of tens of thousands of Syrians - up to 200,000 of them, depending on the source.

Countless disappearances reveal the relentless death machine secretly set up by Damascus: teenagers are rounded up in their schools, protesters are sent in trucks to unknown destinations, and passers-by are arbitrarily arrested. For the first time, families in exile, survivors, but also accomplices of the Alawite regime, lay bare the strategy the Syrian dictatorship uses in order to remain in power at all costs. According to Munir al-Hariri, who served the Assads until November 2012, "the objective is not murder, but to prove the State's strength and tyranny. The objective is to kill some to teach a lesson to others".

The illegal recycling of electronics is a toxic business on a global scale. Why do three quarters of Europe's electronic waste disappear from the official recycling system ?

In the suburbs of Accra, the capital of Ghana, children play at dismantling scrapped electronic equipment, surrounded by foul smelling and toxic fumes, in a sadly-famous, uncontrolled rubbish dump. The film takes this site as its point of departure, and is driven forward by Ghanaian journalist Mike Anane, who is an expert on the environment. He wants to know why his country has become the trash can of the developed countries.

This lucid and efficient investigation by Cosima Danneritzer (The Light Bulb Conspiracy) into several European countries, Asia and the U.S., reveals the apparatus of large-scale trafficking, as well as a complex chain of responsibility and collusion.

This is the true story of Europe's rising electricity prices. Today, over 80 million people in Europe are being subjected to a new form of insecurity - in the form of access to energy. In under a decade, electricity bills have rocketed by over 20%! How can an increase of this magnitude be justified? And could the price hike have been avoided?

A lack of political foresight, self-centeredness on the part of States, poor management by industrialists and European Commission dogmatism... is Europe on the verge of a blackout? This investigation endeavours to reveal the series of decisions that have led to this new form of insecurity, to this situation in which citizens lack the power to control access to energy.

Surfing on rising discontent in the face of economic recession or crisis, populist movements have multiplied electoral victories. How can the growing success of these organizations be explained? An investigation into the workings of blooming forms of extremism.

They pretend to speak in the name of "the people," cleverly embracing widespread expectations. To each issue, they invariably offer the same answers : Down with immigration, the European Union, and the elites.

Whether it is Marine Le Pen in France, Geert Wilders in the Netherlands, Viktor Orbán in Hungary, Beppe Grillo in Italy, the leaders of these political movements have managed to capture the allegiance of increasing numbers of citizens, relying on punchy catchphrases and simplistic rhetoric that have helped them build respectable façades.

Some of them have joined forces on the European scale to conquer the EU Parliament. Are they really on their way to power?

HD

Antoine Vitkine carried out a wide investigation throughout the Old Continent, filming at close range the main protagonists of the populist galaxy, from voters to populist leaders. He analysed the speeches and methods of populist organizations while gauging the various forms of anger, fear and frustration on which they thrive. A trenchant documentary exploring the workings of those new forms of extremism which pose a threat to Europe.

Young filmmaker and activist Joseph Paris came across the revolt of the Ukrainian feminist movement Femen in spring 2012, and followed them for one year.

Inspired by their actions, and supportive of their cause, Joseph Paris seeks to distinguish what it is their revolt and these events recount, by adding to the documentary the voices of French writer and poet Annie Le Brun and philosopher, who provide their perspective on this "radical pop feminism", thereby extending the filmmaker's own reflections.

Now that the crisis (economic, financial and ecological) has taken a firm hold over Europe and the rest of the world, the "return to growth" is systematically put forward by political leaders on both right and left, as the key process that will help us emerge from the tunnel.

For the public, invoking a return to growth always raises the same questions: what exactly is growth? How did this economic concept progressively make its mark, to the point of becoming an intangible dogma? How can we continue to promote unlimited growth today, knowing that our planet's resources are limited and are even facing exhaustion? Are there any theoretical and practical alternatives to growth? What can we do on a local level to change the paradigm?

In the film, these concrete experiences alternate between the words of experts, echoing each other, and together outlining new ways to set into motion the vital transition, For each field embodying this transition, the film presents an initiative in the North and in the South to highlight the universality of the movement.

Within a few months, the Greek neo-Nazi party, Golden Dawn, became the country's third political force. This vindictive, authoritarian and populist far right was brought about by the 2008 economic crisis. Insecurity, precariousness, collapse of public services and distrust towards political and financial elites largely paved their way.

In other European countries, similar radical parties followed the same path surfing on the harmful consequences of excessive austerity plans. In Greece, the measures imposed by the <<troïka>> were far from achieving the targeted results. The country is bled dry, democracy and civil order is under threat. Encounter with a population in disarray.

Ten years ago, people started hearing what, for them, was a relatively new word in the Western European political arena and the media - the Roma. They hastily associated the word with begging, trafficking and a mafia network - and even referred simply to the "Roma problem"!

This straight-talking investigation travels to all four corners of Europe, from East to West, in search of the answers, in a bid to understand the phenomenon, to sift truth from myth, and to discover the reality behind the clichés. It examines issues such as nomadism, economic transition, positive discrimination, the racialization of social problems, delinquency, European Union expansion and transitional measures. This film also explores the role the European Union plays in the process of stigmatisation of the Roma. Today in both East and West, extreme-right wing parties - but not solely these parties - are using the Roma as a tool to rise to power. What weight does the EU carry in relation to the Nation states? And more importantly, what are its values?

From Macao to London, Geneva and Shanghai, this detective story into a hermetic and secret world investigates what is bound to become a scandal of international proportions.

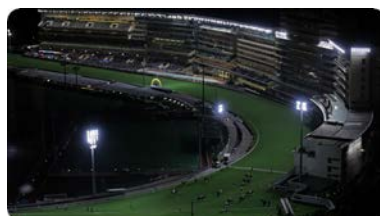

2011 has marked a revolution in the worlds of both amateur and professional sports. The legalization of internet betting in Europe is going to generate a yearly income of 500 billions euros. That's more than drug trafficking.

Based on a system that is similar to the stock exchange, sport betting is exploding with the global flow of money. It is all about major profits and the hope of easy cash in the privacy of one's living room. But for a few to win big ...many have to loose.

What about sports itself ? Suspicion of cheating is already poisoning international competitions and legal trials in Belgium and Germany are multiplying. No sport, no athlete is left unscathed.

The question has to be asked: Will this be the death of competitive sports?

Killer Finance is a highly structured narrative alternating the words of specialists and instructive animated scenes with carefully selected archive images. It is composed of two separate chapters - on the one hand, a veritable lesson in political and economic history retracing the various stages that have led to the financialization of the world economy since the 1929 crisis - and on the other a breakdown of the stock-exchange logic of the recent decade that has led to the current crisis. What have we taken from it? What lessons have we learned from it since 2008?

The movie describes three areas in the world in the US, France and Japan where the landscapes are dominated by nuclear sites. It explains the origins of plutonium, and examines its evolution from a matter used for military purposes to one which is used for nuclear energy. It explores the scientific, industrial and geopolitical implications of its production.

The film begins with the story of the birth of plutonium production in the 40s in Hanford USA, then recounts the history of the nuclear reprocessing plant in La Hague, France, then tells of the Rokkasho nuclear site in Japan which is actually built on a seismic fault line. Citizens and local politicians share their thoughts and experiences on living near these nuclear sites. The film is based on archives made by scientists at that time and recreates the story of an industrial environment secretly born in arid and desolate locations. The sites, depicted through creative imagery, show us that humankind made an irreversible choice in the mid-twentieth century.

Kurdistan, which is split over Iran, Iraq, Turkey and Syria, could play a major role in a Middle East that has been torn apart. But who are the Kurds? What influence do they have? And who exactly is Abdullah Öcalan, leader of the Kurdistan Workers' Party? An enlightening investigation.

The siege of the Syrian city Kobane by the Islamic State troops put forward the forgotten people of the official history : the Kurdish people. In Turkey, where the majority of the Kurdish people is living, the various governments have perpetuated a policy of assimilation and denial with a rare violence. In 1983, the PKK - Kurdistan Workers Party - declared war on the Turkish state. This triggered a 30-year-old conflict, which caused the death of 40.000 people, the displacement of millions of people and the destruction of thousands of villages. Öcalan and the Kurdish issue describes twenty years of high hopes and disappointments in building a dialogue. It narrates a chronicle of one of the key conflicts in the Middle East, through the testimonies of those who lived it.

Estimated at 7 billion Euros a year, the traffic of art is the third largest traffic activity in the world, after drugs and weapons. It constitutes the grounds for a global clash between States, traffickers, auction houses, collectors and NGOs.

How is the traffic of art encouraged and used to legitimise authority, whether economic or political? From Paris to Beijing, via Geneva and Luxembourg, this documentary, in the form of an international investigation, highlights the double talk by States in relation to the traffic of cultural property, as well as the rise of the private players who benefit from it.

The film examines the mechanisms of Nazi extortion during the Second World War, and is interspersed with current issues surrounding restitutions.

It retraces the incredible stories of three major works having belonged to Jewish collectors, from their plundering by the Nazis though to their final restitution: Man with a Guitar by Georges Braque (Alphonse Kann collection), Herbstsonne by Egon Schiele (Karl Grunwald collection), and Sitting Woman by Henri Matisse (Paul Rosenberg collection).

During the war, the ERR run by Alfred Rosenberg, Hitler's art advisor, coordinated thousands of cases of plundering that were carried out all over Europe, and had the spoils delivered to the heart of the 3rd Reich in Berlin. There, the major works were taken to the offices and homes of high-ranking officials and the rest of them were stored in various places. At the end of the war, despite the diligence of organisations focused on their restitution, tens of thousands of works were conjured away. Each time one of them reappeared, unimaginable ownership battles ensued.

What are people's lives like 2 years after a nuclear catastrophe? A sad and sorry return to the region of Fukushima, somewhere between resistance and despair.

The derisory dosimeters, located at crossroads and hanging around children's necks, are a constant reminder of the invisible monster and of the deadly particles people attempt to retain by placing bottles of water on windowsills. 2 years on, in the region of Fukushima, people's lives - or at least their "existences" - carry on, as they integrate radioactive pollution into their daily lives. Beyond the earthquake and the tsunami, the nuclear catastrophe has revealed the shortcomings of a system and its criminal arrogance. And everyone remembers with dread the series of errors and procrastinations that sealed their fate, as politicians preferred to "downplay the situation instead of reducing risks".

ANATOMY OF CRIME FICTION

In a 3 x 52-minute series, ANATOMY OF CRIME FICTION proposes to delve into a particularly popular and worldwide phenomenon.

As we immerse ourselves in the crime fiction universe, we shall decipher its particular codes and conventions, explore the genre's archetypes and limits, revisit the most renowned films, series and emblematic heroes, and set out on the trail of its finest creators. We shall present fact and fiction face to face in the mirror. Suspense, action and addictive thrills are guaranteed!

3 FILMS! Like the famous board-game, Cluedo, we shall seek out the elements of crime, and concentrate on the three essential ingredients of the genre:

WHO: film 1: the holy trinity

WHERE : film 2: the crime scene

HOW : film 3: the murder weapon

PROVISIONAL DELIVERY: FEBRUARY 2016

BEYOND BEAUTY

What criteria do we use to define human beauty? And what values underlie our criteria? What role do women play? What are their beauty secrets? How are social and love relationships established?

When we delve into what beauty really is, different worlds become apparent. What seems to be a focussing on the superfluous is in fact touching the essence. Beauty enables people to acquire self-knowledge and to blossom.

The "Beyond Beauty" documentary collection is an invitation to discover beauty as an original expression of world cultures.

Since the late 2000s and the start of the "Mad Men" series, a retro wave has swept over Western pop culture.

From the cinema (an Oscar for "The Artist", and "Gatsby" with Leonardo Di Caprio presented at Cannes), to television ("The Hours", "Peaky Blinders" and "Fleming"), via fashion with Dita Von Teese's version of the fifties' figure, and the Swing Kids' look of the 1930s - never before has our present been so imbued with the past. The culture of creation may be taking a look in the rear-view mirror, but young urbanites have taken things a step further by turning retro culture into a veritable way of day-to-day life.

In Paris, New York, Berlin and London, this "neo-retro" community adopts not only a quaint appearance, but also the values and codes of the era (the 1920s to the 1960s). Some denounce the stagnation of pop culture over the last couple of decades and see this retro culture as a sign of a certain cultural regression, but many others believe vintage culture enables us to better live in the present.

This documentary reveals how a gesture of emancipation has become an urban ritual and sums up the US today. A place with a high concentration of seats of power. A cradle of black music, but one that took a long time to recognise Hip Hop, the style that popularised the "fist bump".

Originally, shaking hands was a mark of trust. People held out an open hand to show they were not holding a weapon. Today, everybody is doing the "fist bump". How and why did a banal gesture created by 17th century black slaves - which subsequently became a symbol of black ghettos, rap and US sport - end up becoming part of Barack Obama's inauguration ceremony at the White House?

Once considered the mark of outsiders, or a distinguishing feature of convicts and sailors, followed by punks and rockers, tattoos have now spread to all skins.

How did they migrate from the margin to the masses, from underground to mainstream? Tattoos have now permeated all levels of society, but what does the practice of tattooing actually convey? A remarkable investigation into the powers of tattooing.

From Los Angeles to Tokyo, Paris to Amsterdam, the film will intermix personal stories from several key characters -Lyle Tuttle, Mark Mahoney, Jack Rudy, Paul Booth, Mr Cartoon, Horiyoshi 3, Shige, Tin-Tin, Jean Paul Gauthier, Henry Rollins, Dennis Rodman, Kat Von D...), to give viewers a better understanding of the tattoo up rising culture.

10 markets, 10 complex systems that play a crucial role in their city : Barcelona, Budapest, Vienna, Lyon, Turin, Firenze, Toulouse, Zagreb, Riga and Freiburg. They all have a big belly : the city food market that nourishes a great part of their population.

We all know what a food market is. We're attracted by the electrifying colours, pulsing sounds and gorging products. But what do we know about how a food market actually works? How do enormous quantities of food reach there every day and where does it come from? Who decides the prices and puts together thousands of different vendors in huge but concentrated areas? In the Belly of the City graphs the changes that have taken place at the heart of the cities food supply systems from an entirely new perspective.

HORS D'OEUVRE

The French TV show about Art and Gastronomy on Arte, featuring the best chefs in the world.

Beginning with a famous masterpiece, Historians, Art Historians and Historians of Food take us on a journey through Food History and Art. Acting as detectives, they give us keys in order to understand the painting and the painter, the historical context and how people ate at that time. While the specialists deal with those topics, a three-stars Chef explains what the masterpiece inspires him and what he or she is going to cook as a result.

#COUTURE, THE NEW QUEENS OF HAUTE

What is haute couture today ? This film updates the definition of this luxury craft by examining trends among young designers who have reached, or hope to reach, the precious haute couture label.

The documentary highlights 2 young designers: Delphine Manivet and Iris van Herpen, who freely blend tradition and modernity in their creations, thus breaking the codes of haute couture.

One of them launched her own brand of wedding dresses in 2005, and is representative of the young designers who have reinvented the genre by playing down the wedding dress with modern designs that are closer to ready-to-wear; while the other has been revisiting haute couture since 2007, with her avant-gardist and conceptual designs, and juggling with innovative materials such as Plexiglas and Rhodoid.

An air of mystery reigned at the end of the Balmain fashion show on September 28, 2011: nobody knew who was about to take a bow. No one in the room knew the new house designer. His name is Olivier Rousteing.

Ever since Yves Saint Laurent's mythical rise to the top of the Dior house at the age of 21, the world of fashion has delighted in young prodigies whose fine instincts and outstanding personalities promise to change the course of things. Olivier Rousteing belongs to this line of descent.

Paris has a new hero. But it's not an easy legacy to bear, especially in the mythical French house created in 1945 by Pierre Balmain. Is Olivier Rousteing disconnected from reality? How does he manage the stress before a fashion show? How does he build team spirit? How does he dream up and subsequently perfect his talents as a tailor?

Top models, actresses and businesswomen - two outstanding icons revealed. The 1990s produced a new kind of top model. They were beautiful girls but they were also much more than that.

With their strong characters, the "supermodels" turned the codes of fashion upside down, and extended the boundaries of pop culture. Among them, Eva Herzigova and Milla Jovovich immediately stood out. Both grew up far from the glamour of Hollywood, and made their mark without conforming to the stereotypes imposed by the Western dream machine. Leading photographer Peter Linbergh was one of the first to notice the two top models. This film sheds light on the lesser-known facets of two outstanding paths.

Loïc Prigent returns to an exciting, fascinating, crazy and transformative decade that threw everything into question with its fashions that were alternately poverty-inspired, sensational, intellectual and pared-down, before making a victorious and sexy comeback!

This documentary combines spot-on analysis with socio-cultural dissection and a fun trip down memory lane. The inspirational fashions of the 1990s are currently being recuperated, revisited, revamped and revered by catwalk collections in Paris, Milan and New York. The film's 6 major themes - grunge, bad taste, bling, streetwear, sex and minimalism are made up of lively images blending archive footage and present-day interviews.

What if we watched Jean Paul Gaultier at work giving the definitive master class on what constitutes the essence of his work?

Jean Paul Gaultier's work is making clothes, not putting on fashion shows, producing perfume, talking to the media or presenting programs on MTV. But making clothes. He sketches them, of course, but more importantly, he creates them by draping them, constructing them around the body of the fitting model.

12 of Jean Paul Gaultier's most iconic creations are re-created directly onto a fitting model, in front of the camera, in understated, white surroundings. 10 women's outfits and 2 men's outfits.

HD

In Haute Couture, the "toile" is the first stage, carried out using untreated, beige linen, which enables appraisal of the style. Like a first draft, the moment during which everything can still be changed, before the creation takes on its final shape. Jean Paul Gaultier at work can be viewed as a sequence shot, in which the garments materialize before our eyes, revealing how his thought process develops between ideas and material. Gaultier's oeuvre, recounted by himself, in the first person - like a lasting legacy of creativity.

No official biography has ever been published, and the most eccentric figure in the world of fashion has always been discreet about his personal life.

This is a film in which Karl Lagerfeld draws his life: his childhood home, his father, his mother, his school, and Germany. He draws post-war Paris, where he arrived alone, to start a career in the very closed world of fashion. He draws all the fashion periods and trends he has experienced, and which he has marked with his creative genius.

LOOKING FOR KATE

Kate Moss, the top model who is only 1.69 meters tall, still remains, at the age of 40, the model that everyone wants to employ and that everybody knows. But who really is Kate Moss?

She is a veritable icon, a muse of the greatest designers, a shrewd businesswoman (her 2012 revenues are estimated at 9.2 million dollars) and a designer for Longchamp, Topshop and Fred. She has even been the subject of an exhibition at the Museum of Decorative Arts in Paris and of an auction at Christie's in London, featuring artwork images of her.

Kate Moss has had the longest and most successful modelling career, but also the most turbulent, and yet she still remains the top top-model.

Although she never gives interviews, everybody knows her - without really knowing her. How has "la brindille" (her French nickname, meaning "the twig") managed to remain in the firmament for so long?

But above all, who really is she?

From the anonymous models of the 40's to the supermodels, super-famous and ultra-connected, of our modern era, how the social status of models has dramatically changed and how iconic models have shaped an important part of our pop culture ?

The docs provides a clever and audacious insight on how the evolution of models' body reflects the way our society changes and the way the women's emancipation is represented. It is also a history of 50 years in fashion seen as through the body of those women who wore it best.

Packed with exclusive interviews and amazing archive footage, this is a celebration of fashion, glamour and empowerment.

Retracing her steps, this documentary takes viewers on a journey through Sixties London, with its parties, exuberant energy and incredible creativity.

Swinging London in the Sixties was a time of optimism, creativity and enthusiasm. At the centre of this pop rebellion was a new aristocracy, both colourful and insouciant; one that was ennobled by the magazine covers and the hit parade.

And one face more than any other was the incarnation of that cultural revolution: the face of Twiggy.

With her page-boy haircut, androgynous appearance and heavy eyeliner, Twiggy epitomised the Swinging Sixties. Aged just sixteen, the model from North London represented a challenge to the Establishment. She became the world's first supermodel and the icon of the Sixties.

When football becomes a citizen sport! At a time when business seems to be corrupting our relationship with sport, the indomitable Eric Cantona shows us footballers who've managed to resist.

Their names are Mekloufi, Sócrates, Pasic, Caszely, Drogba, Tamburrini, Thaljih, Afonsinho, Navazo or Lucarelli. 10 players who took part in disputes or fought back against the spheres of power, becoming figureheads of resistance or rebellion, well beyond their sole sporting achievements.

A documentary series / manifesto that reasserts the values of sport among citizens, via 10 stories that are dear to Eric Cantona.

2016: the Tour de France is back to Mont Ventoux!

At the top of the Mont Ventoux hangs a huge poster with the names of all the cyclists that won a Tour de France stage on the top of this "Giant of Provence". Which one of these winners would be the greatest climber of them all?

The documentary feature The King of Mont Ventoux puts 5 cycling heroes against each other in an unprecedented Virtual Race beyond the bounds of time. Starting the archive footage of these 5 races together at the foot of the giant, they battle it out in this Virtual Race over the 21-km ascent along a winding forest road to the lunar-like summit of the 'Bald Mountain'; a gruelling one-hour test of endurance and strength. The first to reach the summit is crowned King of Mont Ventoux

A look back at the emergence of Internet freedom defence movements that have sprung up in reaction to growing regulation of the Web by governments and multinationals.

Internet was created by hippies while being funded by the military! This improbable culture shock gave birth to an area of freedom that was impossible to censor or control. Yet for years, that is precisely what a certain number of political leaders have sought to do, prompting hackers and defenders of freedom to enter the political arena.

Alma is 26 years old. She spent five years in the service of one of Guatemala's most violent gangs. Condemned to death by her former brothers in arms for wanting to leave the "Mara", she narrowly escaped their murder attempt, and is now confined to a wheelchair. She tells the camera the tale of her initiation and the most horrible crimes she was involved in, on behalf of her "clique". A poignant and uncompromising exposure of a female criminal in search of redemption.

Autism remains a mystery. However, the fact that there is no medical treatment is an absolute certainty. There is no solution for autism. People with autism will live with this disorder all their life and societies are all facing the same question: how to take care of them?

France lags behind on this subject. Comparing the experiences of other countries, Italy, Sweden, Germany, and Quebec, we will clarify the French situation and demonstrate that practices exist and allow to improve significantly the autistic's life. Every time it comes to real societal choices that reveal our various ways to approach difference. But there are in any case, no simple answers to this complex problem.

Saliha's son Sabri suddenly left for Syria to join the jihad. He was 19 years old. Three months later, just as suddenly, Saliha, her husband and their children hear that Sabri has died. Sabri leaves an empty room behind him, and a devastated entourage.

Grieving in these difficult circumstances, Saliha decides to take action. She makes contact with other parents, other mothers whose children have left for Syria. Some of their children have died. Others are still alive and, despite everything, remain in contact with their families. Together they try to understand where this sudden radicalisation is coming from and how the jihadist networks managed to enlist their children so quickly. The death of a young person in Syria, like the case of Sabri, is not legally noted. The child is presumed missing, presumed dead. How is it possible to grieve in such circumstances? Between the Belgian parliament and the young people she visits in schools, Saliha is trying to move things forward. She bears witness to the phenomenon of radicalisation, to how recruitment is being carried out, and to the elements of fragility it is based on.

Despite the fact that there have been many changes over time in the way anorexia is viewed on a societal, cultural and medical level, the condition remains an enigma

This film is presented in the form of an international investigation into the way the condition is evolving and the way in which anorexia and its treatment take on the interpretations of their era. What is anorexia nervosa? Is it a form of hysteria or psychosis, an addiction or a borderline state? A perversion? A hormonal disorder? A neurological disorder? An eating disorder? A body-image disorder? For centuries, descriptions and interpretations of the condition - some conflicting, some complementary - have followed on from one another. This illness of mind and body resists any exclusively biological or exclusively psychoanalytical approach. The body, which becomes a battleground, bears the brunt of this relationship and dependency disorder. The film focuses on the "enigma" of anorexia (the pursuit of maximum thinness) rather than on the wider field of eating disorders, which would include too many diverse notions. In an attempt to understand where we currently stand in relation to anorexia and how we are treating it, the investigation also extends to Europe and the rest of the world. PROVISIONAL DELIVERY : JUNE 2016

At a time when France is envisaging prison reform, other European countries have already been experimenting for quite some time with a different mode of incarceration, so as to favor rehabilitation.

Overpopulated prisons, round-the-clock surveillance, the perspective of repeat offences: inmates nearing the end of their sentences, particularly those who have committed minor offences, often lack the resources to prepare for rehabilitation into the free world.

"In the depths of the collective subconscious lies the notion that inmates must pay by suffering", remarks Robert Badinter. And yet in Finland, Germany and Switzerland, nearly a quarter of inmates end their sentences in an open environment. A system based on trust and on the inmates' work, enabling them to start afresh, sometimes far from their prisons. For a third of the running costs of classic imprisonment, these solutions are proving efficient, both socially and economically.

The investigation turns to professionals of the prison world and above all, to the inmates. In addition to being a potential and judicious approach, open prisons could become a major issue for modern democracies.

How, since the 1950s, have music and sex influenced each other? Between the intimate and the universal, this 4-episode documentary series recounts evolving mores, through song.

In the 1950s, 3% of songs in the charts were about sex. In the 1970s, that figure had risen to 40%. And in 2009, sex featured in 92% of hits! Sex and music: their intertwined paths recount evolving mores, over the decades, but also our transgressions, our freedoms and our desires. Is it because songs have modelled our thoughts that our sexual behaviours have changed? Or is it our sexual behaviours that have influenced the world of music? Is Madonna forging a new image of women's sexuality, or is her music inspired by women's emancipation of preceding decades? Do heavy metal groups wear leather and studs because of SM influence, or has SM become sufficiently commonplace as to be put on display?

In 4 chapters, this series shows the paths our identities and sexual leanings have taken, and how, via songs, we have gone from inhibition to a pronounced desire for pleasure.

The history of homosexuality in pop culture is awash with secrets, unexpected developments, drama and major acts of courage, which form part of History in general.

It is no longer anything unusual to see homosexual characters in films or series. All the arts explore the theme, and numerous celebrities do not hide the fact that they are lesbian or gay. Yet not so long ago, it was a very complex matter to speak about homosexuality in popular culture, and those who did so had to find ingenious ways to approach the subject, and thus nudge mentalities forward to make homosexuals more accepted by the general public - and by themselves.

Left paralysed by an aeroplane crash, Dorine Bourneton was determined to fulfil her dream of becoming the first disabled female aerobatics pilot.

Dorine had always wanted to fly. But in May 1991, when she was just 16, tragedy intervened. The small Piper aircraft she was a passenger on hit the side of Mount Mézenc, in the Haute-Loire area of France. Dorine was the sole survivor of the crash. She lost the use of her legs, but not the passion for flying she shared with her father. As Sam Caro's documentary charts her struggles and shows how she sets about achieving her goal, Dorine emerges as a woman of exceptional courage and talent. It takes us up to June 2015, when she was about to become the first disabled woman ever to perform an aerobatics display at the Paris Air Show.

The film takes us to Hamburg, Berlin, Paris, Istanbul, London, Toulouse, Lyon and other cities, and recounts how towns and cities are being constructed and transformed, and what space is being left in them for citizens.

Public spaces, the spaces we live our collective lives in, are becoming privatised and marginalised, and run the risk of disappearing altogether. This investigation examines the excesses of the new tools of urbanism, and explores the citizen, political and artistic reactions that are endeavouring to oppose them, in France and in Europe.

In the mythical Eastern Ethiopian city of Harar, man and hyenas live in peace. Here, on the outskirts of the city, Youssouf Mume Saleh, or the "Hyena-man" as he is known, feeds a clan of spotted hyenas every evening. Elsewhere in the Horn of Africa, these animals can terrorize populations, but as Youssouf says himself, the hyenas are part of his family. He has given a name to each one of them.

Youssouf is one of the last guardians of a tradition that is over one hundred years old. Long ago, Harar signed a non-aggression pact with the hyenas, and that pact still exists today. The wild hyenas roam the streets of the city freely, and locals are not worried. They need these natural "rubbish collectors". In addition, the hyenas of Hara protect the population from attack by foreign hyenas.

At a time when all over the world conflicts between man and wild animals are increasing, here exists a unique relationship of cohabitation between man and a major carnivore. This film recounts the story of this exceptional and fascinating man-animal relationship.

Obeying a mysterious annual call, tens of thousands of marbled groupers congregate in the sumptuous Fakarava Atoll in French Polynesia to reproduce.

In synchronisation with the full moon of June or July, the event is a veritable choreography that is as brief as it is spectacular, attracting all sorts of wild, under-water predators.

For the first time, a team of scientists, divers and filmmakers will monitor and survey the channel of an atoll in order to render visible and comprehensible the hidden mechanisms of what is the lagoon's real lifeline, announcing a moment of frenzy ... between life and death.

In the heart of the mighty Amazon forest, hides a strange animal that we do not expect to see thousands of kilometres from the ocean.

The Amazon Pink River Dolphin, which looks like a living fossil, is one of the most mysterious species of the animal kingdom. Where does it come from? How has this animal come to acclimate to this flooded, tropical rainforest environment? What links do they have to marine dolphins? Are they simple descendants of the marine species, or a distinct species that has survived through the ages and adapted to this lush environment?

Unknown for a long time, the pink dolphin remains a mystery to the scientists struggling to reconstruct its evolutionary course. Now thanks to a recent discovery, scientists are finally able to understand more about the mystery of the pink dolphin and its origins.

See the world through different eyes!

Whether they depict deep-sea divers in the Bermuda triangle, game keepers in the far-flung reaches of the Siberian forest or women peasants in the Peruvian Andes who have created their own football club, the films in the "360° GEO Report" series provide us with fascinating insights into the extraordinary lives and work of exceptional men and women.

From sapphire mines in Madagascar, to a small Russian village on the edge of the Arctic Circle that is slowly sinking into the sand, to the Japanese island of Miyako and its inhabitants who nearly all live beyond their hundredth birthday - our teams travel the planet exploring nature, technology and remote civilisations, and portray what they discover there through meticulously documented, emotion-packed reports.

The epic history, in 3D, of Strasbourg Cathedral and its outstanding builders. A fascinating docudrama, from start to finish.

Strasbourg Cathedral, a gothic jewel and the highest monument in the West until the 19th century, was both an excessive dream and an architectural feat. How, in the Middle Ages, was such a wonder made possible?

Behind its elegant, pink sandstone façade and its famous rose window, which is set ablaze at sunset, three centuries of visionary and inspired master-builders followed on from one another - Erwin de Steinbach, Ulrich d'Ensing and Jean Hültz - as did craftsmen with a savoir-faire that was envied all over Europe. They return here in fiction form. An epic blending mystery, doubt, revelations, intrigue and tragedies.

No other part of the world boasts as many castles and palaces as Europe. A breath-taking aerial view leads us through the Loire Valley in France, to southern Germany, the southeast of England, the Piedmont in Italy and along Portugal's coast.

Kings and Princes built their palaces and summer residences in the most beautiful and strategically located spots.

We will introduce individuals who walk the tightrope between tradition and modern-day reality by living and working in castles, châteaux and palaces or in their immediate vicinity. They will open doors that are normally closed to the outside world and reveal captivating stories.

CIRCUS WORLD TOUR

Sarah Schwartz has been travelling the world, from big top to big top, for over twenty years. She has made the circus her world. A high wire at her feet leads her from one country to the next.

In this collection, she invites us behind the scenes of the circus dream, revealing its highly singular world. Taking part in a convoy with Sarah Schwarz means discovering a country in a different way: through the steamed up window of a caravan, a different shade of world goes past, a nomadic world, a world of freedom.

With Sarah, we set out to discover a universe that will help us understand the countries visited, bringing us wisdom and knowledge, but also magic and poetry. From the family circus to contemporary circus, from the travelling circus to the permanent circus, we discover countries that are different from each other, yet are all planets in the same galaxy. Roll up, roll up, for a magical, brightly coloured world tour!

IN SEARCH OF SECRET SPLENDOURS

The history of man, told through uncharted sites, traditions and peoples, with, as a guide, the talented 34-year old paleopathologist Philippe Charlier, who is also a historian, anthropologist and forensic pathologist.

Via the scientific studies he has either taken part in or knows everything about, Philippe Charlier takes us on a world tour of secret splendours, all of which reveal a little more about the history of peoples, via their ways of life, their culture, their rites and their religion. Amidst breathtaking landscapes, we discover mythical places and traditions that are shrouded in mystery.

INNOVATION ON BOARD

From France to Indonesia, young engineer Corentin de Chatelperron and his crew sail their catamaran Nomad of the Seas on a quest for self-sufficiency. The aim of their "low-tech" world tour is to find simple solutions to universal problems.

Corentin and his organization Gold of Bengal have launched a challenge to experts, students, organizations, do-it-yourselfers and scientists all over the world to invent "low tech" systems - simple methods that help human beings reclaim their independence. These techniques require a great deal of ingenuity and talent but a low level of financial resources. During each stopover - which constitutes each episode - we discover a particular aspect of a country through the topic covered, such as the desalination of seawater in Morocco, electronics recycling in Togo and the consumption of insects in Thailand. For each stopover, the crew meets low-tech inventors and innovators, who are seeking to solve universal problems of food, energy, water and material resources.

The series follows the first year of the expedition. As the crew clock up their successes, some failures and various experiments, the boat gradually undergoes a transformation, becoming increasingly autonomous, thanks to the low-tech systems it has adopted.

Whether they are hot spots of glamour or places steeped in history, beaches reflect the evolution of a country - from the very first swim in the sea for the privileged few to today's mass tourism.

We travel from continent to continent, visiting beaches that reveal how people live, who they really are, and what they think. From Russians sunbathing standing up, to Chinese who cannot swim, to enthusiasts of nature and naturism in Germany, to women wearing veils in the sea in Pakistan, "Let's All go to the Beach" is an original way to discover the various codes of our world's societies.

Coastlines and seafronts are the gateways to the oceans, a source of many and varied natural resources. It's easy to understand why half of the world's population lives along or near the coast.

Throughout History man has discovered and settled faraway places by first reaching land on the coasts and seafronts. And it's one explanation for the fascinating racial mix that is often found on coasts. The 10 coastlines featured in the series brilliantly reflect the lifestyles and customs of the people that use them. Some coasts are still growing like those in Hawaii, spiked with active volcanoes whose lava flows into the ocean, others are at sea level as in United Arab Emirates. On the coast live multilayered and mixed-race communities, deeply rooted with strong identities. Together they all share a common secret, the secret that has fashioned their culture and their way of life: the fear of the Big One in California, the isolation along Chile's endless coastline, the smouldering volcanoes of Hawaii, nature preservation in Costa Rica, souvenirs of the revolution in Mozambique, post-communism in Cambodia...

Coastlines and seafronts are the gateways to the oceans, a source of many and varied natural resources. It's easy to understand why half of the world's population lives along or near the coast.

Throughout History man has discovered and settled faraway places by first reaching land on the coasts and seafronts. And it's one explanation for the fascinating racial mix that is often found on coasts. The 10 coastlines featured in the series brilliantly reflect the lifestyles and customs of the people that use them.

Some coasts are still growing like those in Hawaii, spiked with active volcanoes whose lava flows into the ocean, others are at sea level as in United Arab Emirates. On the coast live multilayered and mixed-race communities, deeply rooted with strong identities. Together they all share a common secret, the secret that has fashioned their culture and their way of life: the fear of the Big One in California, the isolation along Chile's endless coastline, the smouldering volcanoes of Hawaii, nature preservation in Costa Rica, souvenirs of the revolution in Mozambique, post-communism in Cambodia...

MOBYLETTE DIARIES (THE)

A generous and poetic road movie, off the beaten track.

On his old orange Mobylette, François Skyvington invites us on a unique trip around France and Germany. Taking side roads and byroads, he lets us in on his fun and informative one-of-a-kind encounters.

Director and author, François Skyvington has, in the past, been a globetrotter, a courier, a fairground worker, an antique-dealer and a barman. An adventurer in search of new encounters and stories, he travels through France and Germany on his old orange moped from Arles to Munich, via Ushant and Berlin.

For the first time in over a century, the sometimes far-fetched Yeti legends and personal accounts have become the subject of state-of-the-art scientific studies. Several teams throughout the world, in Denmark, England, the US and Russia are carrying out a merciless competition to be the first to publish the revolutionary results - proof that another hominid, with very ancient roots, shares our existence

Does the Yeti really exist? Our film sets out to meet the teams involved in this strange race across the world, and features laboratories, hair analysis, footprints and DNA as well as the search for samples in Indonesia and in Canadian nature reserves. A fascinating and thorough film, featuring, amongst others, French Collège de France paleoanthropologist Pascal Picq.

A journey through the Korea of yesterday and today, in five 52' episodes.

Following the Korean War between North and South, South Korea was considered to be the world's third poorest country. In the space of 50 years, it has become one of the most prosperous nations of all.

How did this miracle happen when the country is still at war, and the North is bowed down under the weight of a communist dictatorship?

"Tree Stories" is a five-episode journey, combining nature's finest tree specimens with the unique stories of the people that live alongside them.

The trees that are featured across Europe - from Greece to Sweden - stand as references to time, witnesses of collective life and sources of spirituality. Others represent, quite simply, aesthetic encounters. From the ends of their roots to the tips of their crowns, ten trees recount stories and converse among themselves, in this beautiful blending of nature and culture.

This series is an invitation to discover 40 French villages, each one steeped in history and among the most beautiful in France. Each village has a story to tell, and is set in an enchanting natural environment. In their own way, they are all unique, with their own soul and spirit, sometimes encompassing a legend or concealing a mystery.

Throughout the 40 films, our roving guide - a sort of modern-day Tintin reporter - Emmanuel Laborde, is accompanied by a camera-drone, and together they reveal an original and appealing view that is both spectacular and unusual. The series combines informative facts and intriguing discoveries, and will certainly surprise, entertain and captivate a wide range of viewers.

Discovering the world via its winds is the wild gamble of Arthur de Kersauson, a young urban adventurer who is curious, amusing and thirsty for knowledge.

For us, he sets out in search of the winds in France, in Reunion Island, in Morocco, in Turkey, in Quebec, in India, in Namibia...

The wind carves out the landscape of a country, and shapes its inhabitants, customs and culture. These entertaining and incisive road movies lead our traveller to make enriching and moving encounters, which are sometimes zany, and always exotic.

A keen extreme sportsman, Arthur also takes advantage of his quest to discover wind activities, in each country he travels through.

WORLD MEDICINE

A world tour of ancestral medicinal practices, among majestic landscapes.

Bernard Fontanille is an emergency doctor used to operations in difficult conditions. During his various missions he travelled all over the planet to cure, shield, heal, take care of people and to ease pain. Led by his strong sense of humanity and his curiosity, he makes us discover and shares with us the live of women and men caring for others, saving lives, and sometimes inventing new ways of treatment.

He also shows us traditional forms of medicine deeply rooted in the local culture. Through his various encounters and by presented methods he shows us the different realities of a country and also the universal link that unites a patient and his doctor: humanity and confidence.

Our dreams of discovery, of exotic locations and unusual encounters will lead us to the snow-topped summits and mist-filled valleys of some of the world's most mythical mountains.

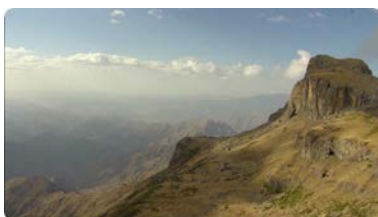

Their names are perhaps familiar only to mountaineering aficionados, but they convey a sense of wonder that inspires all our imaginations. Often extremely difficult to even reach, if not climb, they are a source of both fascination and foreboding.

The common denominator of these natural sky-scrapers : they are all generally sacred places, and their inhabitants regard them as veritable gods. The local populations, in harsh, even menacing environments, perpetuate rituals and traditions that are of great importance in their everyday lives. Tourism and mountain-based sporting activities may have developed considerably, but such places still retain an aura of mystery that we shall reveal through this spectacular series.

Nestled in the heart of the Himalayas, the small kingdom of Bhutan has decided to do away with "the dictatorship of Gross Domestic Product" and economic growth at all costs. A new wealth indicator has now become the country's gold standard: Gross National Happiness (GNH).

Launched by the country's fourth King, the "new paradigm" is based on four pillars: protection of the environment; conservation and promotion of Bhutanese culture; good governance; and responsible and sustainable economic development. Today, GNH permeates the entire country, and is bringing about deep change in agriculture (100% organic by 2020), the national education system (pupils learn to become "ambassadors of change"), natural resource management (strict regulations on mining and felling trees, and "zero carbon" development), healthcare (free for all), tourism (top-of-the-range), and energy (the promotion of renewable energies).

HD

Through interviews with senior officials as well as with players in the field, the film recounts the development of GNH. The vision of happiness and common good that underpins the country was the subject of a report that attracted a great deal of attention in the United Nations. This film in the Land of the Dragon will guarantee viewers a change of scenery. The country has gone from the Middle Ages to modernity in the space of less than 50 years, and is showing the way towards a sustainable, "decarbonised" and fairer society.

Are biopesticides - micro-organisms that fight pests naturally - the promise of a chemical-free agriculture? Farmers all over the world are converting to biopesticides, stimulated by scientific research that is opening up new perspectives. But is the technique risk-free for the environment?

Invertebrates, insects, mites, fungi, bacteria, viruses ... these living mini-organisms that scientists are studying in great detail worldwide, will here make light work of pests. Today they are our best hope of a pesticide-free agriculture that is so harmful to man and the environment.

So are biopesticides revolutionary? In Europe, Brazil and India, millions of farmers have already adopted bioprotectors. Today, the agro-chemical industry is investing heavily in the sector, but promising as it is, the technique is still far from being infallible, and is not entirely devoid of risk to the ecosystem.

This documentary is an invitation to take the plunge into a mysterious and fascinating world - that of a small man-made lake, with a fairytale history.

Originally created for the extraction of gravel, and subsequently abandoned, an ecological miracle is now taking place there. Unknown to man, the rebirth of an entire biotope is underway, forming a veritable refuge for rare and threatened species.

A year of striking images takes the viewer on a discovery of the life of the fish, birds and mammals that populate the small lake and its surroundings. These close-to-home, freshwater habitats provide such exceptionally beautiful images and tales of natural history, it is as though they have come directly out of the Amazon.

HD

The documentary is the story of an ecological rebirth. For centuries, Europeans have sought to tame their rivers and drain their alluvial planes, destroying entire regions in the process. As a result of their actions, we are now observing, almost everywhere, a dramatic decline in river biodiversity. But all is not lost. As strange as it might seem, it is from these very borrow pits (the man-made lakes created for the extraction of gravel and ore), which for a long time contributed to the destruction of nature, that salvation could now come.

What actually is a season, for example? We have been to the moon, and are exploring the outer reaches of our universe, but what do we really know about our immediate environment?

The return of spring is such a familiar event for us all, and yet it is still a source of great mystery for the scientific community.

What controls the finely attuned reactions of living organisms to seasonal cycles? From a single blade of grass to the most majestic tree, from insects to mammals? And how will Nature adapt to the changing seasons if global warming continues?

Researchers from many disciplines working together on these issues are coming up with some disturbing findings.

From butterfly nets to DNA sequencers, from Medieval registers to the latest satellites, this documentary proposes some surprising discoveries in this study of the seasons through advanced contemporary science.

Does cultured meat - which numerous scientists in various countries are working on - open up real perspectives for feeding a rising population and for fighting pollution (18% of greenhouse gasses allegedly come from livestock rearing)? Or does it represent a false hope?

Will the environmental arguments put forward in its favour be enough to convince consumers to eat cultured meat? Is the current commercial success of the first meat-substitute products available on the market heralding a change in what we eat? Would it not be preferable to turn towards insects, given that they are an already established source of protein and, what's more, are natural?

They have never met each other, but have many things in common. Although they are neither activists nor intellectuals, they all possess a sense of urgency in the face of the deterioration of our planet, which they see as a threat to the future of their children, and to humanity in general.

They form part of an increasingly large body of voices that are speaking up to demand an economic and ecological transition that will take on the challenges of the 21st century. On their own individual levels, they show that things can be done differently right now, by taking part in initiatives that lead to a fairer and more sustainable society, in the area of food production (urban agriculture), energy (transition towns) and money (local currencies). Can the phenomenon of today's allergy explosion be rationally explained? This documentary endeavours to understand the phenomenon, by highlighting the true environmental causes and the protection strategies we have at our disposal.

In the course of her investigation, the director unpicks the classical theory that attributes allergies to a natural flaw in our immune system, making it erroneously target inoffensive elements necessary for life, such as pollen, for example, and sheds light on industry's role in the spread of this modern scourge. Highlighting the lack of testing on the effects of pesticides and antibiotics before putting them on the market, challenging the notion of "background doses"... Patrizia Marani blows the lid off the dubious practices of the pharmaceutical laboratories and agri-food corporations, showing how, day by day, their chemicals are weakening our immune systems.

Human consciousness, which is unique in the living world, has remained a mystery of divine origin for thousands of years. But today, recent and spectacular scientific progress (from medical imagery to quantum physics) is starting to shed light on it.

I think therefore I am. But who thinks inside of us? Who are we? This film takes us on a journey beyond our brains. Like conscience, human intelligence has propelled Man to the peak of evolution, giving him the opportunity to dominate the world. And yet today, intelligence would seem to have broken down. Average IQ is dropping. Through this investigation into the nature of intelligence and multiple intelligences, we discover the reasons for this breakdown, and how we can give our intelligence another boost, thanks to scientific progress, including brain cell transplants.

Should cancer really be understood and treated as a "disease of the genes" or could another avenue - which was once abandoned but has now been taken up again - enable us to understand and treat it?

Researchers and doctors in various countries think so, and want to revolutionize treatment. For them, cancer is a disorder of cellular metabolism, which could be treated with a few simple molecules. This film invites us to take stock of their research.

A journey to the heart of a revolution in progress - the "animal gene".

An XXL-sized Belgian Cow, swollen with a specific gene in order to maximize its weight and muscle structure. American scientists are working on the Cow of the Future, able to generate "eco farts" in order to reduce global warming. How would you like your Cow? Plump? Hornless? When is a new global epidemic going to strike? At a time when new viruses are emerging at an unprecedented rate, and as Ebola is claiming lives in West Africa, this in-depth investigation examines this invisible threat.

In the space of 60 years, over 350 new infectious diseases have appeared, including SARS, H1N1, H5N1 and Ebola. The emergence of viruses seems to be speeding up. Experts are unanimously wondering: when will a new world-wide epidemic strike? The Plague, the Spanish flu, smallpox, AIDS - history has undergone infectious episodes that have decimated populations. But what is the state of research today? Are we better prepared? This film traces 3 particularly threatening viruses: the H7N9 flu virus in Asia; the Mers-CoV virus, related to SARS, which is active in the Middle East; and the Ebola virus, which is striking terror in West Africa.

A fascinating journey into the future with designer Philippe Starck, to meet visionaries who imagine and are inventing the world of tomorrow.

Yet Man and our world, as we know them today, are only half way through their history, given that it will be another four billion years before the sun is extinguished. So what does our future hold in store? What will Man be like in the future? What state will the planet be in, twenty years from now?

Using concrete present-day experiences, French creator and designer Philippe Starck makes projections for the future, as he heads towards more distant visions. He depicts an outline of the world of tomorrow, taking us on an original planetary journey to meet visionaries - those who, like Starck himself, know man must mutate.

For a few years now, scientists have known about the existence of another brain within our bodies - billions of connected neurons, molecules (neurotransmitters) that transmit orders and induce independent reactions. This second brain, or "brain down below" is none other than our stomach.

It can function totally independently and carries out far more than just digestion. It reigns over a spectacular colony of one hundred thousand billion bacteria (our gut flora) whose activity is thought to have an impact on our personalities and decisions, and our shyness or temerity. Even more astonishing: certain diseases of the brain, like Parkinson's disease, for example, could stem from the degeneration of our intestinal neurons. And we could even treat our stomach pains with hypnosis - curing our stomachs by "talking to them". All these major discoveries have revolutionised our approach to an organ that was previously considered to be dull and passive. The stomach's intelligence is a new avenue of research that is fascinating research teams the world over. This film takes a look at it.

Is Baclofen, which has been used as a muscle relaxant for years, the miracle-molecule cure for alcoholism some think it is?

This documentary follows a clinical trial aimed at testing its efficacy. It also examines the scientific and ethical issues regarding addiction treatment, and the limits of medicine.

In recent years, the medical approach to alcoholism has undergone major change with the hype surrounding a "miracle" molecule that can allegedly quite simply cure those who are dependent on alcohol: Baclofen.

Use of the drug is causing debate in the medical world -is it really efficacious? Does Baclofen provide real hope for the 140 million people worldwide who are dependent on alcohol? Can we "cure" alcoholism as we can cure organic disease?

In Japan, in the region of Fukushima, citizens and scientists are working together to try to understand the invisible contamination that threatens their lives and haunts their minds.

What is a contaminated environment? What can we eat? Where can we live? Will our children be able to go back? What do I risk? To answer these pressing questions, collaborations of a new type are linking scientists, who have accepted to step out of their laboratories, and ordinary people, who now have to understand a complex science. Our film attempts to portray this unusual dialogue between simple folk and scientists. The disaster isn't a thing of the past for them, nothing is under control, it is all just starting.

How do our brains carry out the process of reading? A professor emeritus guides us through this fascinating exploration of a high-precision neural mechanism.

The film structures itself around a central question we ask as an enigma: how to reconcile the cultural singularity that is reading, developed recently by our single species, with the slow pace of genetic evolution, and therefore with the fixity of brain biology?

Stanislas Dehaene proposed an astonishing scientific hypothesis: neuronal recycling. In other words, our cultural inventions, such as reading, resulting in the diversion of pre-existing brain function.

Scientists have proved that the mental faculties of high-performance athletes' are superior to the average brain. Today, psycho-cognitive training is carried out in certain major clubs and Olympic teams, to push sportsmen and women even further. Studies now demonstrate its efficiency.

The performance of athletes has evolved considerably over the last twenty years, and the extraordinary talent of certain super-trained, veritable winning-machines is intriguing neuroscientists. As a result of technological progress, scientists now have the tools to be able to understand exactly what lies behind the talent of these unstoppable champions.

Through careful observation of outstanding athletes' brains, scientists have identified mechanisms of learning and gesture memorisation, in the core of these athletes' neurons.

They have been able to observe to what extent intensive physical training modifies the cerebral cortex, which gives high-performance sportspeople greater rapidity and more precision than anyone else in their particular sport. But the beneficial effects of their daily sports practice do not stop there; it also increases their cognitive capacities. More attentive and able to control their concentration effectively, these athletes use superior intelligence to read and anticipate their opponents' moves.

On sports fields today, high-performance athletes are close to reaching the physical limits of the human body. Their only real margin for improvement is now mental. A growing number of European and North American scientists are offering solutions to top sports clubs and Olympic teams, to train these athletes' mental capacities that have been neglected for so long. They are offering coaches a new perspective on performance, setting up customised training with them, in which great importance is placed on observation, concentration and controlling stress and the emotions.

Can a river be restored, just like work of art or a castle? This film recounts the fascinating ecological adventure that is gaining ground, worldwide, of giving back a little space to landscaped rivers, and the freedom they so desperately require.

In December 2003, the rapid rise in the level of the Rhône turned to tragedy. The river ruptured its embankments, claiming lives and displacing thousands, amid widespread shock. It had been thought the river was under control, but it was observed that the frantic and anarchic planning of the river - in order to tame it and subjugate it to our economic and energy needs - was partly responsible for the catastrophe.

Too many embankments, too many dams, too many roads and railways, too much concrete ... squeezing the Rhône, crowding it out and hemming it in. With its landscapes spoilt and its biodiversity impoverished, it is now even becoming a danger for humans. And so the decision has been made to "restore" it.

Via the epic of continental drift, we travel to all 4 corners of the planet, to meet scientists who are carrying out state-of-the-art research on the most emblematic landscapes of each geological event.

With these scientists, and thanks to their work, we discover the sites in a new light - landscapes that we often see but rarely look at closely. The journey also establishes the key reference points of life alongside the geologic time scale - the appearance of life, of plants, of terrestrial life, dinosaurs and Man punctuate the geologic time scale.

Will we soon be conceiving and growing babies outside women's bodies?

The very first baby conceived following a womb transplant was born in Sweden in 2014. The film relates this scientific undertaking, which has ignited hope among the 1 in 5,000 women born without a uterus, as well as among women who have lost their wombs to cancer or an accident. In France, two medical teams are currently preparing to embark upon a protocol designed for a small group of young women who do not have wombs. This medical exploit marks a new chapter in the fight against sterility. And as medical advances meet the concerns of society, transsexuals and homosexuals view it as the opportunity to experience pregnancy themselves. The prospect of babies developing entirely outside the womb in an artificial uterus is getting closer.

Ever since the prehistory of art, the astonishing beauty of the animal world has never ceased to inspire artists. Animals have always been at the very centre of human cultures. They were gods for the Egyptians, evil devils in Medieval Europe, genies in ancient China, and the spirits of their ancestors for Africans.

Later artists, such as da Vinci, Géricault, Delacroix, Giacometti and Louise Bourgeois, who have all been haunted by certain animal figures, understood that the status of animals raises very real philosophical issues.

At a time when numerous species have disappeared, and others are threatened, the contemplation of animal-inspired works of art leads us to reflect on the place animals occupy in what defines humanity.

Pierre Bonnard is one of the great masters of 20th century painting. A painter of the intimate, driven by an obsession with landscapes and domestic scenes, his timeless oeuvre earned him great criticism in his time.

How did Bonnard, a private, anxious man, who lived an ordinary day-to-day existence, become the incontestable painter of intimacy, capable of transforming reality into a unique and incandescent world?

Through his paintings, his personal notebooks, his correspondence with Matisse and Vuillard, the photographs he was so fond of, and the places he lived, which he painted and exalted time and time again, the film plunges viewers into the world of this master of colour.

In 19th century Paris, for both political and economic reasons, Parisian prostitution became a social phenomenon on an unprecedented scale. From the seedy part of town to the salons of the wealthy bourgeoisie, Paris became the capital of sex.

During this industrial revolution era, doctors and moralists, cops and robbers, bosses and workers all used prostitution - and it inevitably attracted artists.

From the mid 19th century, it was as though prostitution had become a central, key theme of artistic creation. The film recounts the rise and metamorphosis of prostitution in the 19th century, through the eyes of artists, and the pictorial revolution that accompanied it.

By exploring the representation of prostitution in 19th century arts, the film dwells on this very specific moment in the history of the "world's oldest profession".

The image of Christ - an object of art and of scandal - never ceases to inflame passions. A fascinating journey through the history of art, from its first representations to the creations of plastic artists.

Obsessed by American artist Andres Serrano's Piss Christ - the astonishingly beautiful image of a crucifix plunged in urine, which has been causing a scandal for over twenty-five years - the director of this film examines the multiple representations of the crucifixion. How did this abject form of torture become the symbol of Christianity? What approaches do the various contemporary artists have, who explore or pervert this icon, thereby incurring the wrath of fundamentalist movements and of certain worshippers? From New York to Avignon, where the Piss Christ was vandalised in 2011, from Rome to Issenheim, this film involves us in a fascinating investigation, in a bid to untangle the impassioned relationships between religion and art.

Diego Velázquez, the artist ceaselessly in search of the human truth through the treatment of the light and the space and in the way he roams around things, is a documentary maker before his time. His work full of boldness marks an essential stage in the history of paint.

From the paints of Velázquez and especially what gets free of it, the movie goes off to explore the peculiarity of the "painter of the painters" and of the artistic and esthetic revolution which Diego Velázquez caused. Since the "Venus with a Mirror" up to the mirror of Ménines, the movie escapes any didacticism and attempts to recreate the exceptional emotional link between the work of Velázquez and the look of the public, between the eye of the painter and the one of the spectator. Between his life and our lives.

"Throughout my existence, I have been looking through a window at life and not living life." Félix Vallotton was a brilliant and subversive engraver and illustrator. He was also a prolific sketcher and portrait painter - of nudes, of mythological scenes and of landscapes. He had a plural nature, and was very different from one period to the next.

Quite exceptionally, or perhaps even uniquely in the history of art, he was also a man of letters who penned critiques, essays, stage plays and novels. Vallotton the polymorphous artist escaped all categorization. He was a rebellious anarchist yet was resolutely bourgeois; he was a member of the "Nabis" yet was an unrepentant loner; and he was humorous yet was somewhat depressive.

Katsushika Hokusai was probably the most famous and most outstanding Japanese painter and printmaker of his generation, and was the artist whose fame was the quickest to cross the seas (his name has been popular in Europe for a long time).

A multi-faceted and all-round artist, his work is labyrinthine, probably comprising some 30,000 prints, not counting his oil paintings and the books he illustrated. The painter's life was rich, his work was prolific, and both were imbued with a multitude of signs most of which are unknown to us. Let's embark upon a journey and pay a "visit to Hokusai", in the company of his enlightened admirers - Japanese connoisseurs, who are familiar with all these signs.

The Virgin and Child with Saint Anne is one of the most beautiful paintings in the world. It is also one of the most mysterious. Disfigured and even jeopardised by "repairs" and by the successive layers of varnish applied to it over the centuries, it was also in very bad condition. To save the painting, it had to be restored.

The spectacular operation, the likes of which occurs only once a century, took over three years to complete. The complex and outstanding restoration process provided a unique opportunity to get as close as possible to the painting, to how it was originally painted, and to better understand the complex relationship Leonardo da Vinci had with one of his finest masterpieces.

This film provides the opportunity to follow an outstanding project - the restoration of one of the Louvre Museum's greatest icons.

Victory of Samothrace. The masterpiece of Greek sculpture attracts millions of visitors every year, yet is little known to the general public. Archaeologists and art historians have been carrying out research on it for many years in order to clear up some of its remaining mysteries.

Based on the major stages of its restoration, this film recounts the history of a two-thousand-year-old sculpture that today has lost its head and arms, and that travelled to Paris from a small Greek island nearly 150 years ago, in "kit form". The monument - one of the most spectacular and accomplished expressions of Greek sculpture of the Hellenistic period - has dominated the Louvre Museum's Daru staircase since 1883.

ADVENTURERS OF MODERN ART (THE)

Plunge into Parisian life at the turn of the 20th Century with Picasso, Dali, Apollinaire, Man Ray, Kiki and more...

Adapted from Dan Franck's literary trilogy Bohemian Paris, Libertad!, Midnight - The documentary series made up of six episodes plunges us into Parisian life in the beginning of the twentieth century, a hotbed of artistic creation with the blossoming of Fauvism, Cubism, Dadaism, and surrealism.

Through illustrations, animation and original archives, the film will trace the highs and lows, scandals and celebrations, tragedies and the triumphs that shaped the phenomenal period of Modern Art from the basement of the "Bateau-lavoir" in 1900 to the last shudders of World War II.

The main characters are called Picasso, Max Jacob, Stein, Apollinaire, Hemingway, Matisse, Cocteau, Kiki... artists, art dealers, muses who came to France from all over Europe and left an indelible mark on the 20th century. These glorious subversives were adventurers before becoming heroes.

DANIEL BUREN

After Anselm Kiefer, Richard Serra, Christian Boltanski and Anish Kapoor, in 2012, it is the turn of one of the most important and influential artists of our time, Frenchman Daniel Buren, to set up under this Parisian 40-metre-high and 200-metre-long glass roof.

He will endeavour to do what he has been doing so successfully for nearly half a century: transforming the space around us, and making us understand what we think we know without ever having really seen it.

Painted in 1942 by American artist Edward Hopper, "Nighthawks" has become a symbol of American culture through the many reproductions and representations it has inspired, particularly in film.

This documentary reveals the keys to understanding the work, by re-establishing it in its social and cultural context, and bears witness to Hopper's fierce independence as a painter well aware of the artistic stakes of his time, split between realism and abstraction.

Leading contemporary artists delegate whole sections of the production of their works. Increasingly today, contemporary art is the result of a collective effort.

Engineers, designers, architects, artisans, workers, glass-makers, smelters, blacksmiths, coppersmiths, jewellery-makers, "highbrows" and "helping hands", whether they possess high-tech or ancestral know-how - they all work in the shadows to produce today's art. We follow the production of two works, created by two leading international artists - Xavier Veilhan and Wim Delvoye - from conception to completion.

Henri Rousseau, referred to as "le Douanier", started to paint in Paris around 1880, at the age of 40. This self-taught artist was friendly with the poet Apollinaire, Robert Delaunay and Pablo Picasso, who recognised his genius, and yet his work was to remain under-rated during his lifetime.

However, with its dislocated compositions and profoundly dreamlike subject matter, it was to have a decisive influence on modern art, from surrealism to abstract art. This documentary film explores the secret inspiration and the little known influences of a painter whose canvasses are much less naïve than they appear to be.

What exactly is a utopia today, in this early 21st century? The answer will be revealed in May, at the Grand Palais in Paris, where the Kabakovs, experts in failed utopias, will present their "Strange City". On the occasion of a new edition of Monumenta, an art event that is unique in the world.

Ilya and Emilia Kabakov recount their career, and their exile to the West, and present their major works, sharing their doubts and aspirations and their vision of life and art. In their Long Island workshop, the artists reveal the model of their project for Monumenta. Ilya Kabakov, born in the Soviet Union in 1933, lives and works with his wife Emilia on Long Island, near New York. In their own words, the former star of the Moscow underground has become an international artist, whose main subject is still utopia - a utopia that is doomed to fail. The Kabakovs did not just experience the famous "end-of-history" fall of the Wall, they actually anticipated it. In the Kabakovs world, museums also double up as temples that open the doors of a world that is sensual, conceptual, poetic, political, realist and spiritual. The nave of the Grand Palais is therefore an ideal location for the setting of their artistic universe: it will become its space and time.

The Mysteries of the Tarot of Marseille is a documentary about the most enigmatic game of cards of all time. The Tarot of Marseille is known today as the fortune teller's favourite game of cards. Owing to the strange figures that adorn them, for centuries these cards have exerted a strong power of fascination. What do they mean? Who created them and for what purpose?

In the caves of the Hungarian castle of Esztergom, a fresco attributed to Botticelli gives us the starting point to a fantastic investigation through the art and philosophy of the Renaissance, leading to a savant in the circle of Lorenzo de' Medici. This man, Marsilio Ficino, was a philosopher, a priest, an astrologer as well as a magician. As argued in the film, he was also the mastermind behind the philosophical enigmas that are the images on the Tarot of Marseille. This set of images, as we shall see, rather than an ordinary game of cards, reveals itself as a pedagogical tool designed to transmit, while playing, the deepest secrets of Platonic philosophy.

This collection explores history of art in a totally new way. Each film is a journey, an investigation and an adventure. The painting comes to life, as animation overrides the limits of the frame, taking us to the heart of the canvass and plunging us into its era and history.

The great works of the past portray abundant testimonies, and are imbued with secrets and are teeming with mysteries. Beneath the surface of the painting, details awaken, to recount the spirit of the times and the vagaries of History, such as wars, revolutions, economic transformation, scientific discovery, beliefs and schools of thought.

Who was Raymond Loewy? A designer with the golden touch - such a genius that he could cross the US by air, rail, or road, stylishly seated in a plane, train, or automobile he'd designed himself! "Citizen Loewy" is about the rise - and fall - of a star, from brilliance to fizzle. The saga of one of the inventors of the Madison Avenue legend, the Citizen Kane of Manhattan's ad agencies in the 60s, a "Mad Man" spawning a species - the objects and fetishes of the American Dream.

French designer Raymond Loewy was a star when the American Way of Life was at its flamboyant capitalist peak. He styled his own destiny as a Hollywood thriller. After all, he was a tycoon, a New York celebrity. Yet by the end of his life, he'd been forgotten. He took the mystery of his iconic Coca-Cola bottle to the grave with him. The bigger they are, the harder they fall: One day, megalomania got the better of Loewy, and he came to a tragic end. Suspense, drama, twists of fate: Loewy invented the medium as the message.

Like the sensitive plates of their country and society, young Chinese photographers provide their vision of the world's second power in the throes of change. Extraordinary images to better understand the clamour of an era.

This documentary series takes us on the trail of the artists who travel around China, camera in hand. With a strikingly modern perspective, they bear witness to the upheaval the country is experiencing. Changing landscapes, frenzied urbanisation, the emergence of individualism and the feeling of isolation that accompanies it - their photos sketch a portrait, in the present, of the "Middle Kingdom".

Every snapshot is an enigma, the capture of an instant that remains frozen in time. But what happened before? and after? Or just outside of frame? The sublime series now retraces the adventure of this art form, from its beginnings to the present, revealing the hidden stories and trade secrets concealed in a series of photographs.

Every photograph is an enigma. A moment locked into a rectangle. We will never know what happened just before it was taken, or just next to it.

What had to be moved, adjusted, waited for or provoked for all the elements to suddenly come together in the frame and produce an image that once seen, is never forgotten?

Compared to painting, the rules of the photography game are incredibly simple, requiring nothing more than a few pieces in a minimalist game of chess - a subject, a frame, light, a lens, a shutter, and a base. The importance of these pieces varies according to their position, and they are moved around permanently in relation to each other.

The collection invites viewers to discover from the inside "how it's done", and imagine themselves as actors in the complex game that is played out between photography and the real.

Albert Camus is today's most widely read 20th century French writer. For the celebration in 2013 of the centenary of his birth, this documentary goes in search of his impassioned readers.

Camus' admirers form a vast "community" that extends far beyond borders. A cheerful and improbable community made up of people, unknowingly, from different walks of life, including singers (The Cure, Patti Smith...), a Breton priest, an American abolitionist, a Chicago attorney, a Japanese calligrapher and a dancer from Yaoundé.

Sartre and Camus, the two most world-famous, 20th century, French writers, form a legendary and inseparable couple. The two extraordinary thinkers propelled the figure of the politically engaged writer into the limelight. Between 1943 and 1951, Sartre and Camus were friends. In 1952, they publically tore each other apart, with violence, panache and in bad faith, largely on account of the cold war.

There were many reasons for their rupture, including literary, philosophical, political and personal ones, as well as divergent deep beliefs, jealousy and resentment. There constitute all the ingredients of an intellectual and fictional drama. The relationship the two iconoclastic thinkers shared was simple yet tormented, and mundane yet out-of-the-ordinary.

HD

Their conflict marked generations of intellectuals, who had to choose whether they sided with Sartre or Camus. This film features a multitude of personal accounts, and a previously unaired recording of Sartre talking about Camus. It is centred round many previously unseen archive images, and contains original graphics.

A dreamlike journey to (re)discover the Tales of the Arabian Nights: an enchanting immersion into a bountiful book - from India to Egypt, from the Maghreb to Paris.

This film is an invitation to travel and plunges us into the universal imaginary world of the Tales. The journey recounts their wonder of the Tales, returns to their origins, deciphers their hidden meanings, and examines what effect they have on the human psyche. On this adventure from India to Paris via Egypt, the Persian Gulf and the Maghreb, we encounter strange creatures and enchanted places along the way.

But what are the origins of the fantastical figures that haunt the Arabian Nights, and whose adventures set the tempo of the tales' suspense? A suspense that is maintained throughout the tales, and enabled the beautiful storyteller Scheherazade to escape the death sentence the sultan ordered every sunrise. A suspense that has kept generations of readers - both Eastern and Western - spellbound.

Yasmina Khadra's story is anything but ordinary-it is an epic tale. This best-selling author, whose early novels are set during the Algerian civil war in the 1990s, is not, as one would imagine, a woman.

His real name is Mohammed Moulessehouf, a former Algerian army officer who fought against the rise of Islamist extremism that plunged his country into a bloodbath. He spent his sleepless nights writing novels that were published under a pseudonym composed of his wife's first two names. Structured as a road movie between Algeria and France, this documentary takes us on a journey through the work of Yasmina Khadra, the author's complex personality and his life, which is inextricably tied to the history of Algeria since its independence.

Magical venues in a mythical Paris, during a legendary period - welcome to the era of the cabaret!

In the euphoria of the after-war era, a whole host of small cabarets sprung up, attracting a delighted crowd of freedom-loving and novelty-seeking youth, who would come to listen to their favourite singers. With its cellars and backrooms transformed into minute stage areas, Saint-Germain-des-Prés became a rallying point.

Artists such as Barbara, Brel, Ferré, Mouloudji, the Frères Jacques, Aznavour, Gainsbourg, Ferrat and Bobby Lapointe made their débuts on these little midnight stages. Between 1945 and 1974, over 200 cabarets opened in Paris! Not all of them had the "Rive Gauche" spirit and some enjoyed only a brief existence, but all bore witness to the artistic vitality of the post-war boom.

Modest Mussorgsky's (1839-1881) "Pictures at an Exhibition" is seen as a miraculous work that came out of nowhere, defying all classification

The very circumstances surrounding its composition are unique. Mussorgsky sunk into a deep depression following the death of his great friend and confidant, the painter and architect Viktor Hartmann. After visiting an exhibition organised a few months later in honour of Hartman, Mussorgsky wrote the work in a tradition inspired by his deceased friend's work: a series of sketches and models.

"Pictures at an Exhibition" was also one of the works that, for better or worse, underwent the greatest number of different versions and interpretations, thus putting the finishing touches to the image of Mussorgsky as one of the most exploited (in all senses of the term) composer in the history of music.

Tucked behind the Parisian Grands Boulevards is a place that imbues today's budding talents with the spirit of the major 19th century composers and writers.

The Opéra comique is a theatre. It is also a genre - a blend of dialogue and song - and a repertoire, but, above all, it is the cradle of a lively performing art. The last resident troupe at the Opéra comique dated back to 1971 until recently, but this year, the institution has gone back to its roots and created an academy with 10 young opera singers, picked for their talent, their diversity and the way they complement each other. The first set of singers is already busy transforming the Opéra comique's history, repertoire and culture into song.

Techno celebrated its 25th birthday in 2013. It has become a culture in its own right, ranking among trendy music, and bringing together millions of people worldwide.

Its DJs have become veritable stars. It is a global, worldwide culture, and its creators and fans alike share its common denominators of hedonism, a thirst for freedom, and a sense of suspended time via its musical trances.

Thanks to Internet, but also thanks to emblematic festivals, the Techno movement is today undergoing exponential growth. What are the codes and the creative processes of this worldwide culture? Who are the leading players of this global movement? How does this music influence contemporary creation, and increasingly, the economy?

Step inside the most prestigious performing arts school where Miles Davis, Pina Bausch and Kevin Spacey studied.

A captivating discovery, to the rhythm of the school calendar, of the path followed by several students and the philosophy of an institution, where social and community involvement is as much part of the curriculum as the artistic teaching.

One of a kind, the Juilliard School is a school of excellence, the most selective in the United States. The long list of its graduates, which includes Pina Bausch, Kevin Spacey and Miles Davis, is both prestigious and eclectic, and other art schools around the globe are pale with envy.

The 300-year old Paris Opera Ballet School is today a mythical place with an international reputation. In September 2011, it was home to 130 pupils, aged from 8 to 18, all driven by the same desire - to dance one day at the Paris Opera.

Our camera was allowed to accompany them for a whole school year.

The characters are: the younger students, who are amazingly determined for their age; the older students, who, at the age of 16, are already professional dancers; their teachers, who are often principal dancers; and all those who watch over this very singular world.

This 6-part chronicle of life at the school reveals the extraordinary mechanics of precision that lead the students to the threshold of the Corps de Ballet.

This new collection of three dance documentaries (3 x 52-minutes) is an extension of the collection that began in 2012 with Let's Dance! and this time explores the major figures of solo, duet and group dance.

Examining these figures takes us to the very heart of the practice of dance - the multiple forms of dance - reflecting on their techniques, sensuality, discipline, body language, physical characteristics, reasoning and lineage. The collection follows the creative process of solo, duet and group choreography, and in doing so, sheds light on the elements that have forged their history. PROVISIONAL DELIVERY : JULY 2016

Three years after his death, this documentary looks at the extraordinary career of Merce Cunningham, the great American choreographer, and the battle for the preservation of his heritage.

How to ensure that his work lives on despite his death and the break-up of his dance company? Lawyers, trustees, dancers, musicians, archivists and dance teachers join forces and take up the challenge of implementing the CUNNINGHAM LEGACY PLAN, elaborated by the choreographer himself before his death.

This fascinating portrait is for anyone who has ever been captivated by Alain Delon's dashing good looks, and for anyone who wants to know more about the man behind the mask. By the end of the film they will view this famous French icon in a totally different light.

A portrait of Alain Delon that sets out to remove the masks of this defence-ridden, international icon - for the very first time. The portrait focuses entirely on its main subject - it is "pure Delon", with no other interviewees. Via numerous film excerpts, it follows the actor's path right from the start. Delon speaks in a series of surprising interviews, spanning nearly 50 years. At the end of this breathtaking journey, a new vision emerges: Alain Delon, the man of 87 movies and the most handsome face in French cinema, remains a mystery.

Brigitte Bardot, an emblem of female emancipation and sexual liberation, went from the status of innocent girl to that of femme fatale under the gaze of filmmakers and the media.

Blending previously unseen family archives with passages from Bardot's autobiography, and the photographs that shaped her image with the films in which she starred, this documentary provides a subjective and sensitive rereading of the Bardot myth.

For the first time, we see a darker side of Brigitte Bardot, alluded to in her own writings and in the movies that drained her. What lay behind her sunny, blond, natural, dream-girl image?

The word "Borsalino" today designates a felt hat. The Borsalino family brand has become a household name, like that of Tupperware, Kleenex or Walkman.

The quality felt hat, born in a small family factory in Alessandria in the 1850s, rose in status from manufactured object to veritable international myth when the craftsmanship of a small provincial town met the Hollywood dream. This film recounts the history of the manufacture of this myth, which has close ties to the history of cinema in the early 20th century.

In 1926, he was at the peak of his glory and wealth. By 1933, he had reached rock bottom. How, in the space of a few years, did Buster Keaton, the uncontested genius of silent films, go from the status of being a widely-worshipped star to an alcoholic and solitary fallen idol?

With a spotlight on the seven years during which his life changed, using extracts of Keaton's films as magnifying mirrors, the film recounts the dramatic life of this creative genius and the Hollywood studios. Was it yet another episode of the never-ending struggle to hold onto one's freedom in the face of financiers?

Everything has been said, shown and recounted regarding the legend of Charlie Chaplin. Everything... or nearly everything!

How did a street child, born in one of the most underprivileged districts of London, become the most famous man in the world in the space of a few years?

How did cinema, which was only just reaching adulthood, free itself from Music Hall and Vaudeville to suddenly burst into modernity in such a short time, evolving from the status of fairground attraction to an industry generating fortunes and creating almost instant celebrities?

Our film will relive the history of the success of Chaplin, going beyond the era and fashions, and examine the birth of an icon, on its centenary, whose outline alone sums up what is most brilliant, moving and inventive in cinema.

We will explore the mystery of this almost instant success, and the universality of a silhouette that has lasted for over a century. We will relive the resurrection of these images in their former glory.

A production with Chaplin Association.

Bernardo Bertolucci was one of the most important representatives of a generation of angry youth who started their film careers in 1960s Italy. "I like to think of myself as small underground director who infiltrated commercial cinema to create disorder" Bernardo Bertolucci, 1990

Prima della rivoluzione, made in 1964, questions the role of the communist intellectual. Tempted by theory (confronting Marx with Freud) and by aesthetics (a fascination for opera), these themes are at the heart of his work, which includes adaptations of Borges (The Spider's Stratagem) and Moravia (The Conformist). The relationship between sex and society lies beneath his tremendous success Last Tango in Paris (1972). The Last Emperor, The Sheltering Sky and Little Buddha are ambitious frescoes that move away from Europe, but to where he later returned, in particular with Innocents, made in 2003, and Me and You in 2012, in which he revisited his initial obsessions.

A major figure of French cinema, Patrice Chéreau retraces his career and oeuvre, on the occasion of an outstanding master class.

In 40 years and 25 films, Patrice Chéreau was awarded, amongst other prizes, a Golden Berlin Bear, a Silver Berlin Bear, a César, and a Jury Prize at Cannes.

"For me, making a film is a sort of enigma to be solved, a secret to be pierced." For the nearly 40 years that he made films, ever since The Flesh of the Orchid (1975), Patrice Chéreau relentlessly worked the mystery of cinema.

HD

For a long time, he shifted from the stage to film, and from film to opera, before tiring of theatre, which gave him the feeling that he was acting only on reflexes, whereas with cinema, everything was invented.

Marcello Mastroianni, one of the greatest cinema icons, is much more than a playboy. Throughout his 40 year-long career, with his unique style, he has personified every single aspect of the Italian male : charisma, melancholic tenderness, self-mockery, cleverness and a natural gift for appealing to all.

The film lets the actor speak for himself, in a sort of << imaginary autobiography >>. With the many interviews he gave throughout his career, the film builds its own interview, in its ideal form. Mastroianni, and his relatives and partners tell us about his life. Through the portrait of the most famous Italian actor, we try to solve the mystery of this indefinable and enchanting << Italian-style >>.

This road movie transports us to a colourful country, where encounters, discovery and landscapes plunge us, not only into Alexandre Dumas' "Journey to the Caucasus" but also into the Azerbaijan of today, via an actor who, for once, is not playing a role, but remains himself.

In 1858, Alexandre Dumas set out on the roads of the Caucasus and reported on them in his "Voyage to the Caucasus". In 2012, Gérard Depardieu carries out the same journey, noting new borders and focusing on Azerbaijan.

He visits the same towns the writer visited. At the time, Dumas was accompanied by the painter Jean Pierre Moynet, who painted everything that inspired him on their travels, from encounters with people, to unusual places to the adventures they experienced.

HD

Gérard Depardieu is accompanied by artist Mathieu Sapin, our present-day Moynet. Throughout his journey Gérard Depardieu talks to us about Dumas, about Depardieu and about his perspective on the world. Gérard and Mathieu meet local men and women, just like the writer did in his day. Dumas is no longer with us, but Depardieu is there to bring him back to life. And perhaps Dumas helps reveal a side to Depardieu that we have never seen before.

Rocky IV is an emblematic movie, and constitutes a chapter in popular culture. When it was released in 1985, audiences from all over the world flocked to movie theatres. Rocky IV hits the spot, hard.

Rocky IV is dually symbolic - it embodies both the victory of the American boxer over the Soviet one and the victory of neo-liberalism over a dwindling socialism. The film fed a global popular culture that steamrolled everything in the US, in Europe and in the Eastern bloc countries.

Still today, Rocky is held up as a model by some and is a subject of derision for others. An emblem of the 1980s, its culture and its heroes, the film will be the subject of an entertaining analysis of popular culture - which in itself is highly political.

A portrayal of a mysterious artist who is as flamboyant as he is evasive, who combines a love of the limelight with a yearning for the shadows, and who embodies the fascination Hollywood holds.

From his first major movie role ("Splendour in the Grass", 1961) to his latest film to date ("Bulworth", 1998), Warren Beatty has actively courted and fled from the limelight with equal zeal. This actor-producer-screenwriter, and finally Oscar-winning director, who is the irresistible embodiment of the American male - and a man of many women - epitomises Hollywood's genius, candour and excesses. At the age of 30, thanks to "Bonnie and Clyde", he became a prince in the movie kingdom he so passionately wanted to conquer. He then used the same tenacity to set about ridding himself of the dictates of Hollywood, taking refuge in silence and turning down projects and roles. His flamboyant career is an illustration of this ambivalence: in the year 2000, this man of left-wing ideals enthusiastically launched a brief presidential campaign only to abandon it suddenly, providing no explanation of why, other than his desire to be elsewhere. A colourful portrait composed of archive images and animation sequences, spanning 40 years of cinema, between modernity and nostalgia.

After leaving Sennett's Keystone Studios, where he had spent his year of apprenticeship in cinema, Charles Chaplin became a worldwide star at 10 times his former salary by joining The Essanay Film Manufacturing Company in January 1915. For the first time, his name was on the credits (the series was called "Essanay-Chaplin brand"), and Essanay was the first to sell merchandising rights for a movie character.

In one year, Chaplin was to star in and direct 16 hilarious films, including his iconic The Tramp - each release breaking a new record in sales. Like the two previous series (Keystone and Mutual), these will be newly restored. They will sparkle! The restoration of the Essanay comedies will conclude the restoration of the Chaplin films, now 100 years old, and will amaze future generations in their second century.

In 1916, after a 2-year long career, Chaplin is already the most paid actor in the world. He signs for 12 new comedies with Mutual Film Corp. He has his own studio, and total control of the production of his films : unprecedented.

These 12 comedies shot between 1916 and 1917 are a fireworks of humor, invention and fun, maybe what Chaplin has done best in all his career. Success after success, the character of The tramp becomes more complex, and films like The Vagabond, One A.m. Or the Immigrant are jewels of skill and sophistication.

These ultimate restorations are the result of 3 long years of research in the world, and technological achievements. One century after their first release, these films do not have a wrinkle, and the pleasure of watching them is intact. Chaplin said "Shooting the Mutual comedies was the best moment of my life"

This collection is formed of 20 destinations as we discover world cultures, from Russia to Greece, via Brazil and the Antarctic, under the guidance of candid and curious globetrotter Bastien.

Based on experiences of his past trips or on personal accounts of the various people he has met, each episode features an aspect of that country's culture, via a resident he "met on his travels", in a tone that varies from the poetic to the light-hearted. Blending modernity and craftsmanship, the collection - adapted from the short film "Madagascar, a journey diary" (nominated for the Oscars 2011) - blends the digital technology of motion capture with hand-applied work in gouache and watercolour. The resulting films are veritable short animated travel logs.

NET SALARY AND GROSS WORLD

The job-hunt jungle, the fringe economy, the hassles of switching employers almost as often as you change your socks - life reduced to the net hourly wage... A comical chronicle of the world of temping.

Seb and Elise are adventurers, on the lookout for the slightest job. They get brief glimpses of what goes on in the world of work, when company doors swing open for an instant. But then the door slams shut and they're outside, awaiting their next contract.

Supermarket checker, pizza deliverer, "interactive" actor, sorter at the recycling center... Their temporary jobs are tedious and/or absurd, their bosses are toxic, and their customers are obnoxious.

Worse yet, it's all true!

3 Knights - total losers - explore the confines of the known world, because their King has given them a mission: "Take a hike and try to find me". In fact, the King wants to get rid of them because of their supreme stupidity. But the 3 Knights take their mission literally, and set off on a hike to try and find the King.

On their journey, they travel across foreign territories and confront the enemies living in these hostile regions! At the end of the season, the 3 Knights, who will have braved many dangers and killed all baddies, will make an incredible discover: they have indeed found the King.

This animated mini-series is based on Marion Montaigne's popular and irreverent science blog. Professor Moustache and his assistant Nathanaël demystify science on screen and day-to-day.

"You'll Die Smarter" is for those who skipped biology or physics lessons but who vaguely remember what gravity and white blood cells are, and who think that lasers are cool, but would like to know a bit more. And if possible, not have to make too much of an effort, oh, and also have fun. Because learning the fun way is the best way to remember it all.

From its beginnings on the streets of New York City, breaking has experienced a meteoric rise to fame, establishing itself as the style of street dance for young people around the world.

40 years after it first appeared in the Bronx block-party scene, this is the epic story of breaking, as told by its biggest stars - between inner-city violence and reconciliation, mind-blowing acrobatics and artistic expression - from New York City to Seoul, Berlin and Paris.

With MR. FREEZE, DOZE GREEN Rock Steady Crew, CRAZY LEGS Rock Steady Crew, BENJI Division Alpha, JUNIOR Wanted Posse, MOUNIR Vagabond Crew, STORM Battle Squad, and HONG 10 Drifterz.

By the 1960s, legendary conceptual artist Donald Judd had grown tired of New York. That's when he remembered Marfa, a cowboy village lost in West Texas--the perfect place, he thought, to be free at last. Judd, one of the founders of minimalism, ended up turning the town into one of the world's leading places for contemporary art.

Today, despite the artist's death in 1994, Marfa still acts as a magnet for artistic refugees. What are all these modern-day "Marfians" looking for? In five subjective and suggested portraits, I [art] MARFA is a poetic postcard, sent from an eerie Texas ghost town that never destined itself to so much strangeness.

This series is an unsettling journey to the heart of the infinitely small: decay. It is carried out using an innovative technique, the "Cellscope", a microscope usually used for medical purposes, which, when linked to a Smartphone, enables images to be enlarged 80 to 1,200 times.

This series plunges us into the strange and fascinating living world that is born from death, and that inhabits our daily lives. The story, a blend of science and poetry, is told by French actor Denis Lavant, and uses exceptional images to reveal everything that is beautiful, striking and mysterious about decomposition, in THE NIGHT OF THE LIVING. Bacteria, dendritic cells, collembola, yeast ... A composition on decomposition!

How far does a prawn travel before ending up in a supermarket? How much time goes by between the time a cow arrives and the time its meat is refrigerated in the form of a steak?

Focusing on industrially produced goods, "Product"'s subjective camera accesses various manufacturing chains in different countries. Combining a fascination for the processes with a form of unveiling, the series documents the various stages of manufacture, and sets out to meet the communities and discover the technologies involved in them. "Product" aims to decode a globalised industry in which the end products mask the realities of their manufacture.

A plunge into a compelling thriller that revisits the codes of noir film. This intoxicating crime fiction is set in modern-day Paris and features a directionless youth threatened by terrifying predators.

46 year-old police officer Michel Serrero lives on his own with his 15 year-old daughter Clara. When he finds out that his daughter has developed a drug problem and that he is suffering from an incurable neurological disease, he decides he has nothing left to lose, and takes action. Unknown to his superiors, he infiltrates an exceedingly violent network that is planning to flood Paris with a devastating, new, synthetic drug. He risks everything to save his daughter.

Isabelle Adjani is Carole Matthieu - a workplace physician employed in a call centre who has become emotionally involved in the suffering of her humiliated coworkers, exposed to both physical and emotional violence. Powerless to stop the endless flow of employees that come to see her on a daily basis, she decides to take action one evening.

When one employee, whom she has previously saved from a suicide attempt, comes to see her, she decides to end it all... for him. In a frantic race against time, police search for a culprit, unions dither on the stance they should take, and the management tries to keep up a front, to hold on to their market share. Despite these obstacles, and the doubt and guilt consuming her, the slayer-cum-saviour workplace angel is determined to recount "the other story", using notes, letters and medical records. The story of men and women, crushed under the mechanics of performance and profit. With: Isabelle ADJANI; Corinne MASIERO, Ola RAPACE.

This drama is Valeria Bruni Tedeschi's adaptation of Anton Chekhov's favourite play.

In a small garrison town, lost in the middle of the Russian countryside, three young women, who arrived there with their late father, a former brigade commander, dream of returning to Moscow where they spent their childhood. Entertained by military visits, the sisters find a semblance of a life. Macha, who married her dull husband at too early an age, falls in love with a commander. Olga finds renewed enthusiasm for life and Irina becomes engaged to a lieutenant.

But it is soon time for the troops to leave, the youngest sister's fiancé dies in a duel, and solitude once again takes over the lives of these three women, who become disillusioned recluses. The chronicle of several years of a life on the fringes of history and modernity, this four-act drama is an ironic portrayal of a youth without perspective or illusion, as though frozen in a deadly era. The strange mirror of a drifting country, Three Sisters captures the image of a society on the brink of a destiny that cannot be, and that is aware of its imminent end.

With: Eric RUF, Bruno RAFFAELLI, Florence VIALA, Coraly ZAHONERO, Laurent STOCKER, Michel VUILLERMOZ, Elsa LEPOIVRE, Gilles DAVID, Stéphane VARUPENNE, Georgia SCALLIET, Danièle LEBRUN and Michel ROBIN, Bernard NISSILE from the Comédie-Française.
